Report Hitler Terms Offered To Petain

(International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 25.—The London Daily Express today reported that Chancelor Adolf Hitler has offered the French government of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain lenient peace terms in exchange for sweeping naval, military, and economic concessions.

Germany, according to the newspaper, is willing to make peace with France in exchange for the following four-point concessions;

1. German and Italian use of French naval bases, particularly on the Mediterrancan Sea.

2. A full customs union between Germany and France which would enable the Reich to buy needed French material duty-free and thus at prices cheaper than obtainable by any other country.

3. Transit of German and Italian troops through French Morocco and West Africa to enable the axis to retake the pre-world war German central African territories of Togoland and the Cameroons. Use of Marseilles as an embarkation port for Africa-bound axis troops.

4. Free passage of German troops through any part of French European territory.

The London Daiy Telegraph, which reported in a dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, that Petain was en-route to Paris to sign a pence treaty, observed that the "whole new Hitler scheme is designed to impress the United States with the hopelessness of Britain's cause."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The United States, a well-informed diplomatic source said today, has given the Vichy government of France a pointed warning not to expect American aid in case of famine, if it makes an alliance with, or other arrangements helpful to, the cause of Adolf Hitler's third Reich.

This warning was conveyed through diplomatic channels, it was said, as Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and his pro-Nazi Vice-Premier Pierre Laval, negotiated with Hitler regarding a new role for defeated France in the European political and military drama. Reports from Europe state that Berlin wants France's navy and naval bases.

Large Formations Of German Bombers Attempt To Reach London Today

By Robert G. Nixon
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Two hundred British and German airplanes battled furiously over London today as the German air force resumed intensive daylight aerial attacks on the capital.

More than a dozen bombs fell on the city during the course of three separate daylight raids. A considerable number of people were killed and heavy damage caused in some districts.

At least four enemy planes were shot down as British spitfire and hurricane fighters sought to chase the German raiders away from the London area.

Large Formations

Large formations of German bombers, escorted by fighter planes, roared across the English Channel during the early morning hours and headed for London. Three waves of them attacked the London area.

The third air raid alarm of the day sounded at noon, London time, and was still in force four hours later.

Three bombs fell near a sports arena, necessitating an immediate hurry call for doctors and ambulances.

Another high explosive dug a crater and blasted a water main, digging a hole 20 feet in diameter and hurling debris in all directions.

Raiders Disabled

Witnesses said, however, that the tremendous bursts of anti-aircraft fire appeared to disable the raiders, which flew off after dropping their lows at reduced speed and "rocking dangerously."

One bomb directly hit a trolley car, demolishing it and damaging four others nearby. At least one driver was killed and several passengers were injured.

Another missile crashed near a bus, causing a number of casualties. One bus passenger said:

VICHY, Oct. 25.—Political observers here today were convinced that the first result of the sensational interview between Adolf Hitler and Marshal Petain will be a gigantic peace offensive against Great Britain, in which President Roosevelt may be invited to participate.

The possibility was seen that the Petain government of France may request President Roosevelt to appeal to Great Britain to agree to a peace settlement on the grounds that the continent of Europe is about to continue the war.

Report Federal Grand Jury Will Link Embassy With Abuse Of Privileges

WASHINGTON Oct. 25. — The amazing Dies committee case against Nazi propagandists, now in the hands of a federal grand jury in Washington, will link German embassy and consular officials to activities which this government regards as an abuse of diplomatic privileges, International News Service was informed today.

Because of the diplomatic dynamite which the evidence contains, this government, it was learned, decided on grand jury procedure as the best method to avoid a severe strain on U. S.-German relations while serving firm notice on Berlin through non-diplomatic channels that "trojan horse" practices will not be tolerated.

Specifically the grand jury inquiry is directed at Dr. Manfred Zapp, American head of the German-operated Transocean News Service, but actually the investigation encompasses far more than that. In announcing that the department of justice had ordered the investigation, Attorney General Jackson stated that it would be based on material gathered by G-men and by the Dies committee.

Startling Features Of Lee Bill Presented To Bankers By Congressman Graham

Using nothing more than cold facts, Congressman Louis E. Graham presented a rather startling picture of the Washington situation Thursday night when he addressed a dinner of the Lawrence county bankers in The Castleton Hotel.

The particular passages that gave the bankers a new picture of what the New Deal is trying to do to the American people Congressman Graham illustrated with a discussion of the Lee bill.

"This bill is the child of Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma," said Mr. Graham. "Vicious as it is and as destructive of private resources as it is, the bill received 24 votes in the senate when it came up and it will be presented again."

Declare Emergency.

"Under the bill when congress declares a state of war exists, or when the imminence of war is apparent, the president declares an emergency exists. He then appoints boards to take a census of the wealth of the nation and everybody in the nation who has assets of more than $1000 must file a statement of their gross worth.

"The secretary of the treasury then decides how much money is needed and bonds are prepared. Banks are not asked how much they can afford to take; they are ordered to take what the government tells them and these bonds are not returnable for fifty years. District boards are set up to handle the details and there is no appeal to any court from the decision of these boards."

Work Of Congressman.

Startling Features Of Lee Bill Presented To Bankers By Congressman Graham

Using nothing more than cold facts, Congressman Louis E. Graham presented a rather startling picture of the Washington situation Thursday night when he addressed a dinner of the Lawrence county bankers in The Castleton Hotel.

The particular passages that gave the bankers a new picture of what the New Deal is trying to do to the American people Congressman Graham illustrated with a discussion of the Lee bill.

"This bill is the child of Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma," said Mr Graham. "Vicious as it is and as destructive of private resources as it is, the bill received 24 votes in the senate when it came up and it will be presented again."

Declare Emergency.

"Under the bill when congress declares a state of war exists, or when the imminence of war is apparent, the president declares an emergency exists. He then appoints boards to take a census of the wealth of the nation and everybody in the nattion who has assets of more than $1000 must file a statement of their gross worth.

"The secretary of the treasury then decides how much money is needed and bonds are prepared. Banks are not asked how much they can afford to take, they are ordered to take what the government tells them and these bonds are not retirable for fifty years. District boards are set up to handle the details and there is no appeal to any court from the decision of these boards."

Work Of Congressman.

R. A. F. Bombers In New Attacks

Berlin Area And Continental "Invasion Coast" Are Again Raided

(International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 25—R. A. F. bombers attacked objectives in the Berlin area during the night and also raided targets along the continental "invasion coast," the British air ministry announced today.

Armed reconnaissance flights were carried out off the French, Belgian and Dutch coasts, the announcement said, and the ports of Ostend, and Gravelines, a factory and goods yards near Calais and a German convoy off Zeebrugge were bombed.

British bombers engaged in widespread operations over Germany and Nazi occupied territory, the communique said. In addition to Berlin objectives, targets listed were oil plants at Hamburg and Hanover; the Gelsenkirchen docks; shipping at Hamburg, Cuxhaven, Bremer-

Rumanian King Asks U. S. Aid

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—An indirect appeal from King Carol of Rumania for the American government's aid in ending his "semi-detention" in Spain, was received today by the state department where officials refused to predict what action would be taken on it.

W. M. Wilson, the American Charge D'Affaires in Lisbon, reported that he had been approached by a member of Carol's household who asked him to intercede with Washington. Carol and his long time friend, Magdu Lepescu, fled to Spain after the Iron Guards forced their flight from Bucharest.

Roosevelt Says He'll Serve Four Years If Elected

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt stated flatly today that if re-elected for a third term he would serve out his full four years, "God willing."

This statement set at rest persistent reports that the chief executive planned to resign should the international situation ease sufficiently during the next four years.

Funny faces from windows peak, and there's spooks in the evening air, and the goblins strut in a very few days from the depths of their spooky lair. And the witches will ride on their blackened brooms and the elves will be out all night and the annual hallowe'en mummers' parade will certainly be a sight. It's nearly time for those childish pranks that often make neighbors sore, so get set for the fun every single one, the weather is sixty-four.

Prepare Capsules For Draft Lottery

Draft Numbers Must Be Ready

Government Seeks To Speed Up Work Of Local Draft Boards

OLD TYPE UNIFORMS MAY BE PROVIDED

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Some of the first conscripts called into federal service by the national draft lottery next Tuesday may be forced to wear old-fashioned, high-collared coats because of a shortage of complete army uniforms, it was learned today.

This information was obtained by International News Service as national draft headquarters in Washington started an "assembly line" to stuff order numbers into the capsules that will be used in the lottery four days hence to determine which of the nation's 17,000,000 draft registrants will be called up first.

Seek To Speed Work

Herculean efforts were being made by conscription headquarters to prevent postponement of the lottery. Reports that some local draft boards had not yet posted serial numbers of registrants led national officers to "turn the heat on" local boards if the serial numbers are not posted by Monday. Boards failing to post numbers may be ordered to work all day Sunday in shuffling and numbering cards of those who registered Oct. 16.

All serial numbers must be posted, it was warned, before the order numbers can be drawn in the lottery. The order numbers, hidden in blue, non-transparent capsules, will be drawn from one of the two bowls used in the three World War lotteries of 1917 and 1918. The bowl was brought to the capital by Philadelphia police yesterday.

With all of the activity at draft headquarters, it was learned that the war department was having difficulty in getting deliveries on new army coats in time to supply the forthcoming draft army.

that requires a man to be on his toes all the time. Congress has 212 lawyers in it, 269 graduates of colleges or universities, 77 former district attorneys, 50 former judges, 2 former United States senators.

Congressman Graham said that in the present session of the 76th congress, 10,388 bills had been presented in the house and 4300 in the senate.

He said that the 1940 census would cut one congressman from Pennsylvania.

"When Franklin D. Roosevelt took office in 1933" said Graham, "there were 522,189 federal employes. That number is now 1,048,726."

His talk was not a plea for votes so much as it was to warn a group of men of some of the things that are going on in Washington. His address was warmly received.

Prior to Congressman Grahams' speech, A. D. Jones, assistant cashier of the Farmers Bank of Pittsburgh spoke on the American Institute of Banking. He urged the re-establishment of a chapter here and President James Taylor who presided at the meeting appointed a committee to look into the matter.

A nomination committee was named by President Taylor and this committee will report at the next meeting. The dinner and the meeting were among the best the bankers have ever held here. About 75 were present.

Comment on "news" from Berlin: "Correspondents are not told about it, and are warned not to speculate."

WILLKIE SAYS HE WILL ANSWER EVERY ROOSEVELT SPEECH

Pennsylvania for speeches at Scranton and Wilkes-Barre. The Wilkes-Barre speech will be followed by a fifteen minute broadcast from the candidate's train.

Willkie's major speech last night given before an audience of 6,400 in Akron was on the theme "Collective Bargaining." Before leaving the city the candidate had addressed audiences totaling almost 20,000 persons and had been seen by at least another 3,000.

Chats With Neighbors

His formal speech out of the way, Willkie "chatted with the neighbors" in his two other Akron speeches. He revealed that during the years he lived in Akron, prior to the post-war depression of 1921, he had lost everything he had in a stock transaction and even had to mortgage his furniture. He termed it his best financial lesson.

The candidate was on familiar ground in Akron. In the Armory where he made one speech, he had helped to organize a post of the American Legion. Next door was the court house where he practiced law for many years. He served as junior counsel for the Firestone company in whose auditorium he delivered a second speech.

In his major speech Willkie promised that if he is elected "there will be no wrong side of the railroad tracks." He promised that slums will give way to decent housing and that youth will not "be plowed under." In the America he will build, he said, there will be productive opportunity for all.

Assails New Deal Concept

Collective bargaining as conceived by the New Deal is not true collective bargaining," he said. "The New Deal concept is a reactionary concept.

"The true purpose of collective bargaining is to achieve a coordination of effort by the American people and cooperation between them.

Other democracies have failed simply because their leaders despaired of solving problems by the voluntary coordination and cooperation of their people. The defeatism of their leaders resulted in abject surrender to Fascism.

"Let us not, by perpetuating the New Deal in office, run the risk that our democracy shall likewise so fail. Let us unite to make effective our democratic way of life.

"The New Deal has created bad blood between certain groups of industry and certain groups in labor. With the help of the leaders, both of labor and industry, I want to put an end to this era of bad feeling. I want to unify the spirit of America.

"With the help of both, we cannot fail."

PEACE OFFENSIVE MAY BE PLANNED AGAINST BRITAIN

peace I have labored and it is for peace I shall labor all the days of my life.)

A rumor was current here that Marshal Petain had received a message from President Roosevelt the night before his departure to meet Hitler. Officials would neither confirm nor deny the rumor.

However, it was learned that if any such message was sent, it was not transmitted through the American embassy at Vichy or through the French foreign office.

The meeting of ministers which had been foreseen tonight to discuss the proposals made to Marshal Petain by Hitler will probably not be held until tomorrow morning.

Petain's return to Vichy from his meeting with Hitler was delayed by a visit he paid to private friends on the way. It was believed he did not wish to risk the cold night journey and therefore decided to spend the night with these friends.

Meanwhile, Vice-Premier Pierre Laval still was in Paris, where he was expected to be in consultation with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that Laval is assuming a more important role in governmental affairs. It was noticed that he stood next to Petain during the meeting with Hitler, and occupied a position similar to that of Ribbentrop. (Here five words censored)

If there should be a change in the government after the next meeting of the council of ministers, it is considered likely that a general diplomatic movement would undoubtedly follow in which France might well be found on the side of the Axis powers.

TWO HUNDRED PLANES BATTLE OVER LONDON

black fumes. None of the passengers in the lower deck were injured.

"We got out of the bus and saw men and women lying on the pavement. Some were receiving first aid and some were dead."

During the new attacks one stick of three bombs demolished a store with apartments above it, causing an undetermined number of casualties.

Rescue workers rushed to the scene and began recovering bodies from the debris. Glass was strewn hundreds of yards by the explosions and considerable other debris was piled into the streets, where a number of automobiles were wrecked.

The action began when a raider roared over the center of the capital while anti-aircraft batteries sent up a vicious barrage and roof-top watchers ducked to safety.

R. A. F. Attacks Germany

It appeared that the new German attacks were in retaliation for R. A. F. bombing assaults against the Reich during the night. A terse British air ministry announcement said:

"Last night the R. A. F. attacked industrial targets in western and northern Germany.

"A ship building yard in northern Germany was attacked as well as other targets in German-occupied territory."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A Berlin announcement told of a night bombing raid against the German capital.)

The German raiders approached London in three waves from the Kent coast and Thames estuary, taking advantage of the glare of the sun to conceal themselves.

As they approached the outskirts violent anti-aircraft fire opened up and R. A. F. fighters engaged the Nazi planes.

Noise of the combat was audible in the center of London.

Defending planes and guns engaged all three German waves. Intensity of the ground fire indicated that the third group of attackers was by far the largest.

Seemingly endless aerial fighting continued as the German planes persistently tried to break through the capital's defenss, but brilliant work by the British patrols succeeded in keeping the main German waves at bay.

This speech will not be broadcast as the radio time has been relinquished for the Lewis broadcast. At 10:30 p. m., however, will will speak for 15 minutes over the Columbia Broadcasting System under the auspices of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America. His train will leave Scranton at 11 p. m. for New York.

The Philadelphia address will be broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System at 8:30 p. m.

Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York is scheduled to address the same meeting. Later in the evening Wallace will go to Lansdale for a final speech before returning to Philadelphia where he will entrain for New York.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire will address a G. O. P. gathering tonight at Norristown, simultaneous with speeches at other Republican rallies tonight by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of the late president, at Easton, and Charles P. Taft, brother of Senator Taft of Ohio, at Pittsburgh.

At Scranton, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, a member of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities, will invade the home of Rep. Patrick Boland, Democratic whip in congress, who seeks re-election. Thomas will speak at a Young Republican regional convention. Bolands opponent is Joseph F. Gunster of near Scranton.

FRANCE IS WARNED BY U. S. NOT TO EXPECT ANY AID IN FAMINE

lishing custody over French possessions in the new world if there is any indication that Vichy plans to turn them over to Germany.

Last night the Pan-American Union announced that the inter-American emergency committee to administer European colonies—a body whose organization was agreed upon at the Havana conference of foreign ministers last July—is fully completed and ready to function.

The Havana protocols provided that the committee would become operative as soon as two-thirds of the 21 Pan-American nations—14—had appointed their members.

The committee was completed when Ecuador announced the appointment of its ambassador to this country, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, to the group. Previously 13 other nations, including the United States, had named their members.

This temporary committee will function until two-thirds of the Pan-American states have ratified the convention establishing a permanent commission to administer European possessions which may be transferred from their parent power to another non-American nation.

Martinique Center

Washington's interest centered meanwhile on Martinique, French Caribbean possesion only a few hundred miles from the Panama canal. A group of French naval vessels now are blockaded in the harbor there by a British flotilla.

While—so long as Britain's navy controls the Atlantic—there is no apparent danger of German forces taking over Martinique, its transfer by Vichy to German sovereignty, or French permission for Germany to use it as a base, would, in the view of officials, violate the Havana conference's resolution against transfer of American possessions from one European power to another.

In the wider theatre of war, the state department was following with intense interest Germany's negotiations with France and Spain. Officials believed that Berlin, having failed in its plans to invade Great Britain this fall, is now attempting to set the stage for a major attack on British interests in the Mediterranean and the near east.

If France and Spain enter the "axis" alliance, observers pointed out, Germany may attempt to march an army south in an attempt to conquer the British stronghold of Gibraltar, "key to the Mediterranean". Meanwhile, if Hitler obtains France's navy, he may also strike at Suez.

FRENCH CABINET WILL GATHER TO CONSIDER FATE

exception of Vice Premier Pierre Laval, will thoroughly examine all aspects of Petain's talk with Hitler yesterday.

Laval, it was anticipated, will go to German-occupied Paris for further negotiations with Nazi authorities.

Officials said that Laval probably will return to Vichy tomorrow for a meeting of the council of ministers.

Fateful Decision

The week to follow will prove one of the most important in French history, it was indicated, as during that period France will decide the fateful question of a general alignment with German and Italian policy.

All circles in Vichy recognized the gravity of the decision facing France. Alignment of France with the Axis would bring not only the immediate risk of a conflict with Britain, they pointed out, but also might put France in a serious predicament in the future should Germany be defeated in the end.

Thus, what France must decide is whether alignment with the Axis and its attendant risks are worth an immediate territorial settlement with Germany and an easier "modus vivendi"—with Germany's promise as the only guaarntee.

Censorship Increased

Increased censorship of outgoing news prevents correspondents in Vichy from cabling any report on opinions regarding this issue now entertained inside the government and among French political circles.

But there were clear indications that the German-French negotiations conducted so far have by no means brought matters as yet to the stage of an actual, binding signature.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Contrary to the Vichy reports, a Berne dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph said Petain would go to Paris to sign a formal French-German pact.)

Advices reaching Vichy indicated that the aged French premier would return to Vichy this morning after his conference yesterday with Hitler aboard the latter's special train at the French-German demarcation line.

French Vice Premier Pierre Laval, whose talk with Hitler several days ago laid the groundwork for Petain's meeting with the Fuehrer, will proceed to Paris to carry on the negotiations, it was understood.

All signs pointed to a far-reaching agreement between France and Germany, under which the Reich may take over French territory and obtain the right to use French bases for a mighty offensive against Great Britain.

Prepare Capsules For Draft Lottery

OLD TYPE UNIFORMS MAY BE PROVIDED

By JACK VINCENT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Some of the first conscripts called into federal service by the national draft lottery next Tuesday may be forced to wear old-fashioned, high-collared coats because of a shortage of complete army uniforms, it was learned today.

This information was obtained by International News Service as national draft headquarters in Washington started an "assembly line" to stuff order numbers into the capsules that will be used in the lottery four days hence to determine which of the nation's 17,000,000 draft registrants will be called up first.

Seek To Speed Work

Herculean efforts were being made by conscription headquarters to prevent postponement of the lottery. Reports that some local draft boards had not yet posted serial numbers of registrants led national officers to "turn the heat on" local boards if the serial numbers are not posted by Monday. Boards failing to post numbers may be ordered to work all day Sunday in shuffling and numbering cards of those who registered Oct. 16.

All serial numbers must be posted, it was warned, before the order numbers can be drawn in the lottery. The order numbers, hidden in blue, non-transparent capsules, will be drawn from one of the two bowls used in the three World War lotteries of 1917 and 1918. The bowl was brought to the capital by Philadelphia police yesterday.

With all of the activity at draft headquarters, it was learned that the war department was having difficulty in getting deliveries on new army coats in time to supply the forthcoming draft army.

that requires a man to be on his toes all the time. Congress has 212 lawyers in it, 269 graduates of colleges or universities, 77 former district attorneys, 50 former judges, 2 former United States senators.

Congressman Graham said that in the present session of the 76th congres, 10,388 bills had been presented in the house and 4300 in the senate.

He said that the 1940 census would cut one congressman from Pennsylvania.

When Franklin D. Roosevelt took office in 1933" said Graham, "there were 522,189 federal employes. That number is now 1,048,726."

His talk was not a plea for votes so much as it was to warn a group of men of some of the things that are going on in Washington. His address was warmly received.

Prior to Congressman Grahams' speech, A. D. Jones, assistant cashier of the Farmers Bank of Pittsburgh spoke on the American Institute of Banking. He urged the re-establishment of a chapter here and President James Taylor who presided at the meeting appointed a committee to look into the matter.

A nomination committee was named by President Taylor and this committee will report at the next meeting. The dinner and the meeting were among the best the bankers have ever held here. About 75 were present.

R. A. F. BOMBERS IN NEW ATTACKS

haven, Wilhemshaven, Rotterdam, Ile Havre and Lorient; Railway communications and freight yards at Emmerich, Munster, Hamm and Duisberg, a Hamburg power station and the channel ports of Flushing, Ostend and Dunkerque.

In addition several German airdromes were attacked according to the announcement, which said one British plane failed to return to its base.

Comment on "news" from Berlin: "Correspondents are not told about it, and are warned not to speculate."

WILLKIE SAYS HE WILL ANSWER EVERY ROOSEVELT SPEECH

Pennsylvania for speeches at Scranton and Wilkes-Barre. The Wilkes-Barre speech will be followed by a fifteen minute broadcast from the candidate's train.

Willkie's major speech last night given before an audience of 6,400 in Akron was on the theme "Collective Bargaining." Before leaving the city the candidate had addressed audiences totaling almost 20,000 persons and had been seen by at least another 3,000.

Chats With Neighbors

His formal speech out of the way, Willkie "chatted with the neighbors" in his two other Akron speeches. He revealed that during the years he lived in Akron, prior to the post-war depression of 1921, he had lost everything he had in a stock transaction and even had to mortgage his furniture. He termed it his best financial lesson.

The candidate was on familiar ground in Akron. In the Armory where he made one speech, he had helped to organize a post of the American Legion. Next door was the court house where he practiced law for many years. He served as junior counsel for the Firestone company in whose auditorium he delivered a second speech.

In his major speech Willkie promised that if he is elected "there will be no wrong side of the railroad tracks." He promised that slums will give way to decent housing and that youth will not "be plowed under." In the America he will build, he said, there will be productive opportunity for all.

Assails New Deal Concept

Collective bargaining as conceived by the New Deal is not true collective bargaining," he said. "The New Deal concept is a reactionary concept.

"The true purpose of collective bargaining is to achieve a coordination of effort by the American people and cooperation between them.

Other democracies have failed simply because their leaders despaired of solving problems by the voluntary coordination and cooperation of their people. The defeatism of their leaders resulted in abject surrender to Fascism.

"Let us not, by perpetuating the New Deal in office, run the risk that our democracy shall likewise so fail. Let us unite to make effective our democratic way of life.

"The New Deal has created bad blood between certain groups of industry and certain groups in labor. With the help of the leaders, both of labor and industry, I want to put an end to this era of bad feeling. I want to unify the spirit of America.

"With the help of both, we cannot fail."

peace I have labored and it is for peace I shall labor all the days of my life.)

A rumor was current here that Marshal Petain had received a message from President Roosevelt the night before his departure to meet Hitler. Officials would neither confirm nor deny the rumor.

However, it was learned that if any such message was sent, it was not transmitted through the American embassy at Vichy or through the French foreign office.

The meeting of ministers which had been foreseen tonight to discuss the proposals made to Marshal Petain by Hitler will probably not be held until tomorrow morning.

Petain's return to Vichy from his meeting with Hitler was delayed by a visit he paid to private friends on the way. It was believed he did not wish to risk the cold night journey and therefore decided to spend the night with these friends.

Meanwhile, Vice-Premier Pierre Laval still was in Paris, where he was expected to be in consultation with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that Laval is assuming a more important role in governmental affairs. It was noticed that he stood next to Petain during the meeting with Hitler, and occupied a position similar to that of Ribbentrop. (Here five words censored)

If there should be a change in the government after the next meeting of the council of ministers, it is considered likely that a general diplomatic movement would undoubtedly follow in which France might well be found on the side of the Axis powers.

black fumes. None of the passengers in the lower deck were injured.

"We got out of the bus and saw men and women lying on the pavement. Some were receiving first aid and some were dead."

During the new attacks one stick of three bombs demolished a store with apartments above it, causing an undetermined number of casualties.

Rescue workers rushed to the scene and began recovering bodies from the debris. Glass was strewn hundreds of yards by the explosions and considerable other debris was piled into the streets, where a number of automobiles were wrecked.

The action began when a raider roared over the center of the capital while anti-aircraft batteries sent up a vicious barrage and roof-top watchers ducked to safety.

R. A. F. Attacks Germany

It appeared that the new German attacks were in retaliation for R. A. F. bombing assaults against the Reich during the night. A terse British air ministry announcement said:

"Last night the R. A. F. attacked industrial targets in western and northern Germany.

"A ship building yard in northern Germany was attacked as well as other targets in German-occupied territory."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A Berlin announcement told of a night bombing raid against the German capital.)

The German raiders approached London in three waves from the Kent coast and Thames estuary, taking advantage of the glare of the sun to conceal themselves.

As they approached the outskirts violent anti-aircraft fire opened up and R. A. F. fighters engaged the Nazi planes.

Noise of the combat was audible in the center of London.

Defending planes and guns engaged all three German waves. Intensity of the ground fire indicated that the third group of attackers was by far the largest.

publican State Chairman James F. Torrance, Vice-Chairman Mrs. John Y. Huber, Young Republican Chairman Frank C. Hilton, National committee members Marjory Scranton and G. Mason Owlett, and the three candidates for statewide office.

The Republican nominee will arrive at Scranton at 6:25 p. m. for a 30-minute stay and will speak at the railroad station. He will arrive at Wilkes-Barre at 8:20 p. m. and deliver a half-hour address in the armory at 9 p. m.

This speech will not be broadcast as the radio time has been relinquished for the Lewis broadcast. At 10:30 p. m., however, will will speak for 15 minutes over the Columbia Broadcasting System under the auspices of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America. His train will leave Scranton at 11 p. m. for New York.

Wallace On Tour

Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, was to begin his second one-day tour of the state from Pittsburgh this morning, with appearances scheduled for Latrobe, Johnstown, Altoona, Lewistown, Harrisburg, York, Coatesville and Philadelphia, where Wallace will address a large gathering. The Philadelphia address will be broadcast over the Mutual Broadcasting System at 8:30 p. m.

Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York is scheduled to address the same meeting. Later in the evening Wallace will go to Lansdale for a final speech before returning to Philadelphia where he will entrain for New York.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire will address a G. O. P. gathering tonight at Norristown, simultaneous with speeches at other Republican rallies tonight by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., son of the late president, at Easton, and Charles P. Taft, brother of Senator Taft of Ohio, at Pittsburgh.

At Scranton, Rep. J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, a member of the Dies committee investigating un-American activities, will invade the home of Rep. Patrick Boland, Democratic whip in congress, who seeks re-election. Thomas will speak at a Young Republican regional convention. Bolands opponent is Joseph F. Gunster of near Scranton.

FRANCE IS WARNED BY U. S. NOT TO EXPECT ANY AID IN FAMINE

lishing custody over French possessions in the new world if there is any indication that Vichy plans to turn them over to Germany.

Last night the Pan-American Union announced that the inter-American emergency committee to administer European colonies—a body whose organization was agreed upon at the Havana conference of foreign ministers last July—is fully completed and ready to function.

The Havana protocols provided that the committee would become operative as soon as two-thirds of the 21 Pan-American nations—14—had appointed their members.

The committee was completed when Ecuador announced the papointment of its ambassador to this country, Capt. Colon Eloy Alfaro, to the group. Previously 13 other nations, including the United States, had named their members.

This temporary committee will function until two-thirds of the Pan-American states have ratified the convention establishing a permanent commission to administer European possessions which may be transferred from their parent power to another non-American nation.

Martinique Center

Washington's interest centered meanwhile on Martinique, French Caribbean possesion only a few hundred miles from the Panama canal. A group of French naval vessels now are blockaded in the harbor there by a British flotilla.

While—so long as Britain's navy controls the Atlantic—there is no apparent danger of German forces taking over Martinique, its transfer by Vichy to German sovereignty, or French permission for Germany to use it as a base, would, in the view of officials, violate the Havana conference's resolution against transfer of American possessions from one European power to another.

In the wider theatre of war, the state department was following with intense interest Germany's negotiations with France and Spain. Officials believed that Berlin, having failed in its plans to invade Great Britain this fall, is now attempting to set the stage for a major attack on British interests in the Mediterranean and the near east.

If France and Spain enter the "axis" alliance, observers pointed out, Germany may attempt to march an army south in an attempt to conquer the British stronghold of Gibraltar, "key to the Mediterranean". Meanwhile, if Hitler obtains France's navy, he may also strike at Suez.

FRENCH CABINET WILL GATHER TO CONSIDER FATE

exception of Vice Premier Pierre Laval, will thoroughly examine all aspects of Petain's talk with Hitler yesterday.

Laval, it was anticipated, will go to German-occupied Paris for further negotiations with Nazi authorities.

Officials said that Laval probably will return to Vichy tomorrow for a meeting of the council of ministers.

Fateful Decision

The week to follow will prove one of the most important in French history, it was indicated, as during that period France will decide the fateful question of a general alignment with German and Italian policy.

All circles in Vichy recognized the gravity of the decision facing France. Alignment of France with the Axis would bring not only the immediate risk of a conflict with Britain, they pointed out, but also might put France in a serious predicament in the future should Germany be defeated in the end.

Thus, what France must decide is whether alignment with the Axis and its attendant risks are worth an immediate territorial settlement with Germany and an easier "modus vivendi"—with Germany's promise as the only guarantee.

Censorship Increased

Increased censorship of outgoing news prevents correspondents in Vichy from cabling any report on opinions regarding this issue now entertained inside the government and among French political circles.

But there were clear indications that the German-French negotiations conducted so far have by no means brought matters as yet to the stage of an actual, binding signature.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Contrary to the Vichy reports, a Berne dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph said Petain would go to Paris to sign a formal French-German pact.)

Advices reaching Vichy indicated that the aged French premier would return to Vichy this morning after his conference yesterday with Hitler aboard the latter's special train at the French-German demarcation line.

French Vice Premier Pierre Laval, whose talk with Hitler several days ago laid the groundwork for Petain's meeting with the Fuehrer, will proceed to Paris to carry on the negotiations, it was understood.

All signs pointed to a far-reaching agreement between France and Germany, under which the Reich may take over French territory and obtain the right to use French bases for a mighty offensive against Great Britain.

SUPER-TAXES MAY END PROGRESS

WHY is this country the home of the great automotive industry, symbol of the machine age at high tide?

The stock answers usually are: "This is a rich country," "Our great natural resources," "The mechanical genius of our inventors," etc. But none of these answers is right, says Nation's Business.

When the automotive industry was getting its start we were not a rich country relatively speaking. Our natural resources have never exceeded, if they have equalled Russia's or the British Empire's. The steam engine, the internal combustion motor and the first automobiles were invented by Europeans.

The real reason for American dominance in this field is to be found in the state of mind of the American people. Such wealth as we had was in the hands of individuals instead of government. A much higher proportion of our wealth was available for putting into new business ventures. The individuals who controlled it were willing to take a chance on enterprises that were too risky for politicians to dare attempt. Incentives were so attractive that capital was kept at work steadily in those fields that produced what the people wanted, production reached high levels and the people attained previously unheard-of standards of living.

This was not the case in the countries of Europe. There 30 per cent of the national income was seized as taxes, against only about five per cent in this country up until the turn of the century. Since then the dead hand of government began to take more in America. In the last eight years the "take" has reached nearly 30 per cent here.

Unless this trend is reversed the end of progress in the United States is at hand. We are rapidly importing from Europe nearly every abuse of public authority that our ancestors left there to escape.

LEARNING FROM LONDON'S FIRES

Sending New York City fire department experts and officials to London to study air raid fire problems has a war defense angle, naturally. But paradoxically this mission may gain information of great value in dealing with the regular, everyday peacetime job of fighting fires, particularly large ones.

The superb record of bravery and devotion of the regular and auxiliary London fire brigades under air raid conditions appears to be equalled by their steadily increasing efficiency, both in extinguishing large-scale fires when they get under way and in smothering incipient blazes, in spite of the terrific heat of the flame bulbs.

American fire fighters, in New York and other cities, obviously will find it desirable to prepare against war dangers. But the New Yorkers are likely also to bring back some good peacetime pointers, particularly in the important matter of stopping a fire before it gets well started.

EXPECT LARGEST U. S. VOTE

The people of the United States are showing more interest in their voting privilege than formerly, if rising registration figures are reliable evidence. In 1928 only 36,879,414 eligible voters voted. In 1932 the number rose to 39,816,522. In 1936 the total popular vote was 45,646,817. Yet even then 27,000,000 citizens who might have voted did not do so.

Registration in some areas where it is required yearly has been running far ahead of 1936 figures. It looks now as if the total popular vote in 1940 will be our biggest so far, with a lot of people voting who have neglected that job in the past.

This is a good sign. It indicates interest in public affairs, growing appreciation of the citizen's responsibility in a self-governing nation, and growing eagerness to take advantage of the opportunity—denied to the people of many lands today—to express approval or disapproval of policies and officeholders.

POLITICS' BIG PRIZE

With New York City next Wednesday, definitely decided as place and date for President Roosevelt's political speech in New York, and with Wendell Willkie certain to close his campaign with a concentration on the big town that colossal city, always in the limelight national election time, is to be this year truly the cynosure of all eyes in America.

While New York City has not been pivotal invariably in Presidential elections, it was once so dramatically decisive by a mere handful of votes (in 1884) that Americans habitually look anxiously to it election night. The election night revelation of the likely winner of New York state's 47 votes in the electoral college is the size of the Democratic vote in New York City and the size of the Republican vote upstate.

Whenever the Democratic majority in the city and the Republican majority up-state are close the shift of a few votes in New York City one way or the other can tell the tale. The two units—city and up-state—in this equation are somewhat matched numerically. In 1936 the total New York vote for Roosevelt and Landon went to 5,472,892, of which up-state cast 2,766,594 and New York City 2,706,298.

Last-minute votes naturally are to be won more readily through the climax of a personal appearance by a candidate in the city than in the state. It is largely for that reason that candidates center at last on the big town. Roosevelt will make his New York City speech his chief address and Willkie, after the most energetic and intensive personal canvass this country has seen since Bryan, will close there with all the vigor he can command.

A minor excitement these days consists of the way the straw vote takers are jumping one another's claims.

A general warns the draftees not to expect to be pampered. Certainly the top sarge won't read any bedtime stories to his flock.

Dust bowl center has now moved far to the Southwest, it is reported. If it goes clear out into the Pacific Ocean, no one in the Midwest will object.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PROBLEM IN NEW SET OF PLAYMATES

Moving into a new neighborhood may bring new problems to your child. Having liked the old community, this child may have a hard time adjusting himself in the new.

"Dear Dr Myers: Would you please try to help me? My husband says I am just letting this problem get me down." Then she writes of her only child; boy, seven.

"He is a very affectionate child and well liked by both children and adults. I have had mothers bring their children to play with him, hoping they might learn some of his good traits and manners from him. I had a grandmother wish that her grandson would be like him; an expectant mother wish her unborn child would be like him. He gets along well in school. The teachers think he is fine.

"Three months ago we moved into this suburban town. The children, some older, some younger, like him and want to play with him. But the mothers don't feel the same about him. I overheard one mother say that if he were the only son on earth she wouldn't have him, that he was an awful child. One little girl, age four, said her mother did not want her to play with Billy, that he is a bad boy . . . went and talked to the mother but could not find out. . . .

Vivid Imagination

"Billy has a very vivid imagination. Seems like he is continually being anyone from the Lone Ranger to the mounted police. We just let him play. But I have noticed that some of these mothers curb it in their children.

"My husband and I spend a great deal of time with Billy. Father and son are real pals. Daddy will get down on the floor and come out as Jack o' Lantern and play. Just as though they were both small boys. We answer his questions as honestly as we can. . . . Sometimes the other children tell what they have been told. Of course Billy tells what he has been told and sticks by it because he knows it is the truth. Do you think this may be a source of the trouble?"

Help Billy Adjust Himself

My reply: "Your child's remarks, in the light of your wholesome instruction, easily could be the major factor. Better make it clear to him that, since some other parents do not explain to their children as you do, he had better not say a word when such matters come up. We must take into account the folkways of any community. From their point of view those mothers easily might suppose your child is a dangerous playmate. Don't expect to change them suddenly. Since, as you say, there are some foreign parents in the neighborhood, your boy may innocently have dropped some unfortunate remarks. In many ways he may seem different to them. Even his fine flights of imagination might annoy them.

"Just patiently go on trying to guide your boy to adapt himself and to win the respect of those parents and their children. Strive to make yourself a welcome newcomer in the neighborhood. Attract the children to your home and be a gracious hostess to them. Encourage your boy to cultivate playmates among those of his own age. And good luck."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Somebody has asked, Why change horses?

If I had a nag that, after eight years of patient trial, was found to be unruly, hard to catch, hard to bridle and saddle; that had never learned to be bridle-wise; that would pitch and rear at most unexpected times, wouldn't stand without being hamstrung and hogtied, would roll to get the rider off, bite the hand that fed him, and kick and paw even when free; that never took kindly to a currycomb, had four white feet and a wicked eye, and would lay his ears back at anything from a dove to a mud turtle, I sure wouldn't lease him for another four years.

And if I met, even in the middle of a surging stream, a fellow riding a good-looking bay, young enough, and knew how to behave in saddle and harness, one that would pull when hitched to a telegraph pole and never pull back on a halter, I sure would trade right there in the middle of that muddy ford.—R. Isabel writes: "Although I realize that bridge is the open sesame to many social opportunities that I am missing, I simply can't enjoy it because almost whenever I have played it has started disagreeable arguments that have made the game more of an ordeal than a pleasure."

I sympathize with you thoroughly, Isabel. I was launched into contact by just such a crowd who made me feel that I would rather attend a geometry party or a trigonometry party than a bridge party. Both men and women glared or snapped when their partners made misplays and argued over their opponents' claims to winning. Noting that such frictions sometimes developed serious enmities, I retired from the game for more than a year. Then other friends persuaded me to start afresh with them. They are all gifted with a sense of humor and a good-natured tolerance for the mistakes of others. Having for years made it a rule to eliminate from their circle those with the temperament of the first group with whom I played, they make the game a source of pleasure and an occasion for delightful social intercourse.

Readers' Questions Answered

Question: I am planning a home wedding at 11 o'clock in the morning. Is it correct to use candles at this time of the day, and if so, should they be lighted?—J. S. B.

Answer: If you mean candles for the improvised altar, by all means use them—lighted. Altar candles are lighted during any service, regardless of the time. Candles should not appear on a luncheon table, unless the dining room is without daylight. They may be used during a formal afternoon tea when the shades are drawn.

Question: Recently while paying a visit I found that I had neglected to bring along my personal visiting cards. The woman who accompanied me on this visit insisted that I write my name in ink on her visiting card. To please her, I complied, but am now afraid that this was incorrect.—Anne.

Answer: What you did was correct—if you placed your name below the engraving. It should not have been placed above the engraving nor on the back of the card.

Question: My husband has been dead for three months. My son bears his father's name. Should he now drop the "Jr." or continue using it?—Widow.

Answer: Your son should drop the "Jr." from his name, as it is improper for a man to continue using it after his father is dead.

A delegation had called on the state leader at his farm. He received them with his shirt loosened and a pitchfork in his hands.

At the barn no hay was in sight.

"Where's the hay?" demanded the politicians.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

NO POLITICIAN.

Wendell Willkie irks the politicians.

The politicians have spent a lifetime perhaps, or many years in learning how in their way to control votes and voters, but here is a candidate for the Presidency of the United States who has not held a single public office, not even that of Justice of the Peace. I heard Senator Lucas talk about this the other night over the radio. He seems to be very much disturbed because Wendell Willkie has had no experience in politics. The Senator said that no man without experience in the political game could possibly be able to control the forces in Washington. The Senator recommended Roosevelt as a past master in politics. If politics be a profession where deceit is at a premium, no doubt the President is past master in politics, for he has from the beginning deceived the American people.

A long time ago Ben Franklin was sent by this country to represent it in France, and Benjamin Franklin having had no experience as a politician, told the truth to the Frenchmen and to everyone else with whom he came in contact. They would not believe him; they thought he was just another deceitful politician, and as a consequence, Benjamin Franklin obtained for this nation, everything for which he sought, simply by telling the truth.

Wendell Willkie, in his tremendous campaign for the Presidency of this nation, is just another man of Benjamin Franklin's stripe. He is telling the people the truth. Some believe him and some do not. He is criticised by the New Dealers because, for instance, he splits infinitives, or he talks with an Indiana burr on his tongue; that he makes mistakes in grammar; above all, that he is not a wise politician.

It is about time for this nation to elect a man as its head, as its able man, who makes the habit of telling the truth; who makes the habit of keeping his promises; who is well qualified to handle the business of any great corporation, even the greatest of all—the United States of America. It is an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime to the voters of a nation which still adheres to listening to the voice of the people. It is a great opportunity to elect a man who has no political debts to pay; a man who does not intend to incur any political debts; a man who intends to handle the affairs of the United States of America, as he would his own business affairs.

It will be a wonderful thing if this nation has for its head a man who does not idly make promises which he does not intend to fulfill; a man who will keep his word—come rain, come shine. The people of this nation should not neglect the opportunity of at least trying out such a man.

As far as foreign relations are concerned, the founders of this government, enunciated the principle which Wendell Willkie promises to maintain—"No entangling foreign alliances."

FORCE

Who rules by force may never take his ease
Nor drop his dreary vigil day or night.
His very soul is pawned to dynamite,
To shells to use from skies or under seas.
He must forget there are such prides as these:
Honor and pity, brotherhood and
right.
His constant fear must be that greater might,
Which soon or late the crown from
him shall seize.

Terrible power begets a terrible
fear!
Never so strong is built the barricade
But what a stronger truth and right
will rear.
Who rules by force lives every hour afraid,
Might holds the moment; right outlives the year,
So swiftly obsolete are weapons
made.

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)

NEW YORK — Leaders in creative arts look to their roles in the current crisis:

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress: "Democracy, to conquer, must again become a fighting cause."

Playwright Robert E. Sherwood: "There is poison gas in the air now—in the free air which we American breath. We must know and recognize its sources."

Nelson A. Rockefeller, the U. S. Cultural Ambassador to the Americas: "A union of the intellectual forces of the Americas is needed. Such a union can bring with it an American renaissance of unlimited possibilities."

Eve Curie: "In France, governments change easily, but not characters, not the people."

Author Somerset Maugham: "Culture isn't a decoration or an ornament; it's the expression of our character and our ideals."

But is it smart to advertise that other cigarettes are "more irritating?" We say our enemies are wicked, not wickeder than we are.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

by The Baltimore Sun
(Copyright, 1940)

Coming Off The Pedestal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.

AS Mr. Roosevelt's speech-writing aides prepare the material for the nine speeches in which he is to disclose the alleged "deliberate falsifications" of his opponents, an interesting situation is revealed concerning the oratorical side of the third-term campaign.

ACCORDING to the most authentice journalistic reflectors of the Administration, the oratorical end appears to have flopped. This, plus the formidable gains made by Mr. Willkie in the last few weeks, is responsible for the change in the Roosevelt strategy, the basic idea of which was to have Mr. Roosevelt go clear through the campaign without mentioning his opponent's name and without making a political speech. That no longer seems feasable. It is agreed now that it is essential for Mr. Roosevelt to speak for himself.

HIS managers believe that there is danger in further high-hatting Mr. Willkie and in the Roosevelt assumption that he does not need to seek the votes of the people. On the other hand, they are genuinely confident that five speeches such as his literary aides can produce, and delivered as only Mr. Roosevelt can deliver them, will check the rising Willkie tide and insure an overwhelming Roosevelt victory. That is the way his friends feel, but it is no secret that they had a good deal of difficulty in convincing Mr. Roosevelt that the "draft" pose had to be abandoned and his radio voice used to the limit to charm back the voters alienated by the Willkie attack. It went greatly against the grain for the President to concede that his opponent had become formidable and that there had been any defection from his standard.

WHAT really swung him over, it is understood, was the force with which it was pointed out that neither Mr. Henry Wallace, his "drafted" running mate, nor any one of the ten members of his Cabinet, is capable of carrying the ball for him. On the contrary, without exception they have been oratorical failures. Mr. Wallace, for example, has been unable to get any really national publicity and nothing he has said has made a dent. The feeling among the managers is that to have left the campaign so much to Mr. Wallace was unfortunate in that it made voters think of the possibility of his becoming President and revived the stories about his consultations with astrologers and spiritualists which have been current in Washington for some years.

IT also recalls the circumstances of Mr. Wallace's nomination at Chicago. There, as is well known, with the powerful aid of the Messers. Kelly, Flynn and Hague, Mr. Roosevelt personally coerced a reluctant convention into swallowing Mr. Wallace, thus sidetracking the late Speaker Bankhead, the present Speaker Rayburn, Mr. Jesse Jones, Mr. Louis Johnson, Mr. Paul McNutt and one or two others who thought they had reason to expect his support. Mr. Wallace has done the best he could, and he is a man of many fine qualities and engaging traits. But neither his thoughts nor his personality seems to have been effectively projected in his tour over the country. Some of his smaller meetings—notably in West Virginia and Ohio—have been rather dismal, and the opposition has tended to follow his appearance by reciting the circumstances of his nomination and quoting from the published remarks of some of his friends concerning the possibility that, if elected, Mr. Roosevelt might resign and Mr. Wallace be elevated to the Presidency. It is an exaggeration to say that that idea is not an asset to the third-term campaign.

THESE facts, coupled with the steady gains recently made by Mr. Willkie in all the polls, have perturbed the third-term managers in New York and Washington very much. The net result has been the dropping of the original Roosevelt plan of making no speeches for himself, permitting Mr. Wallace and a few others to carry the ball while he made the "inspection trips" and posed as willing to serve only because an overwhelming majority of the people wanted him.

IT has now been made clear that at least a very formidable minority of the people do not want him at all, and that unless he climbs down off his pedestal and goes after the voters with everything he has this minority may easily become a majority. Accordingly, after the voters he is going, no longer the President willing to sacrifice his personal desires to serve only because the people insist, but a candidate eagerly seeking re-election who is trying to recover lost ground by indicting his opponents and asserting that they "deliberately falsify the facts." And the smart fellows who write his speeches are convinced that such is the charm of his voice and so potent their words in his mouth that he easily can do so.

WHY is this country the home of the great automotive industry, symbol of the machine age at high tide?

The stock answers usually are: "This is a rich country," "Our great natural resources," "The mechanical genius of our inventors," etc. But none of these answers is right, says Nation's Business.

When the automotive industry was getting its start we were not a rich country relatively speaking. Our natural resources have never exceeded, if they have equalled Russia's or the British Empire's. The steam engine, the internal combustion motor and the first automobiles were invented by Europeans.

The real reason for American dominance in this field is to be found in the state of mind of the American people. Such wealth as we had was in the hands of individuals instead of government. A much higher proportion of our wealth was available for putting into new business ventures. The individuals who controlled it were willing to take a chance on enterprises that were too risky for politicians to dare attempt. Incentives were so attractive that capital was kept at work steadily in those fields that produced what the people wanted, production reached high levels and the people attained previously unheard-of standards of living.

This was not the case in the countries of Europe. There 30 per cent of the national income was seized as taxes, against only about five per cent in this country up until the turn of the century. Since then the dead hand of government began to take more in America. In the last eight years the "take" has reached nearly 30 per cent here.

Unless this trend is reversed the end of progress in the United States is at hand. We are rapidly importing from Europe nearly every abuse of public authority that our ancestors left there to escape.

LEARNING FROM LONDON'S FIRES

Sending New York City fire department experts and officials to London to study air raid fire problems has a war defense angle, naturally. But paradoxically this mission may gain information of great value in dealing with the regular, everyday peacetime job of fighting fires, particularly large ones.

The superb record of bravery and devotion of the regular and auxiliary London fire brigades under air raid conditions appears to be equalled by their steadily increasing efficiency, both in extinguishing large-scale fires when they get under way and in smothering incipient blazes, in spite of the terrific heat of the flame bulbs.

American fire fighters, in New York and other cities, obviously will find it desirable to prepare against war dangers. But the New Yorkers are likely also to bring back some good peacetime pointers, particularly in the important matter of stopping a fire before it gets well started.

EXPECT LARGEST U. S. VOTE

The people of the United States are showing more interest in their voting privilege than formerly, if rising registration figures are reliable evidence. In 1928 only 36,879,414 eligible voters voted. In 1932 the number rose to 39,816,522. In 1936 the total popular vote was 45,646,817. Yet even then 27,000,000 citizens who might have voted did not do so.

Registration in some areas where it is required yearly has been running far ahead of 1936 figures. It looks now as if the total popular vote in 1940 will be our biggest so far, with a lot of people voting who have neglected that job in the past.

This is a good sign. It indicates interest in public affairs, growing appreciation of the citizen's responsibility in a self-governing nation, and growing eagerness to take advantage of the opportunity—denied to the people of many lands today—to express approval or disapproval of policies and officeholders.

POLITICS' BIG PRIZE

With New York City next Wednesday, definitely decided as place and date for President Roosevelt's political speech in New York, and with Wendell Willkie certain to close his campaign with a concentration on the big town that colossal city, always in the limelight national election time, is to be this year truly the cynosure of all eyes in America.

While New York City has not been pivotal invariably in Presidential elections, it was once so dramatically decisive by a mere handful of votes (in 1884) that Americans habitually look anxiously to it election night. The election night revelation of the likely winner of New York state's 47 votes in the electoral college is the size of the Democratic vote in New York City and the size of the Republican vote upstate.

Whenever the Democratic majority in the city and the Republican majority up-state are close the shift of a few votes in New York City one way or the other can tell the tale. The two units—city and up-state—in this equation are somewhat matched numerically. In 1936 the total New York vote for Roosevelt and Landon went to 5,472,892, of which up-state cast 2,766,594 and New York City 2,706,298.

Last-minute votes naturally are to be won more readily through the climax of a personal appearance by a candidate in the city than in the state. It is largely for that reason that candidates center at last on the big town. Roosevelt will make his New York City speech his chief address and Willkie, after the most energetic and intensive personal canvass this country has seen since Bryan, will close there with all the vigor he can command.

A minor excitement these days consists of the way the straw vote takers are jumping one another's claims.

A general warns the draftees not to expect to be pampered. Certainly the top sarge won't read any bedtime stories to his flock.

Dust bowl center has now moved far to the Southwest, it is reported. If it goes clear out into the Pacific Ocean, no one in the Midwest will object.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PROBLEM IN NEW SET OF PLAYMATES

Moving into a new neighborhood may bring new problems to your child. Having liked the old community, this child may have a hard time adjusting himself in the new.

"Dear Dr Myers: Would you please try to help me? My husband says I am just letting this problem get me down." Then she writes of her only child; boy, seven.

"He is a very affectionate child and well liked by both children and adults. I have had mothers bring their children to play with him, hoping they might learn some of his good traits and manners from him. I had a grandmother wish that her grandson would be like him; an expectant mother wish her unborn child would be like him. He gets along well in school. The teachers think he is fine.

"Three months ago we moved into this suburban town. The children, some older, some younger, like him and want to play with him. But the mothers don't feel the same about him. I overheard one mother say that if he were the only son on earth she wouldn't have him, that he was an awful child. One little girl, age four, said her mother did not want her to play with Billy, that he is a bad boy . . . went and talked to the mother but could not find out. . . .

Vivid Imagination

"Billy has a very vivid imagination. Seems like he is continually being anyone from the Lone Ranger to the mounted police. We just let him play. But I have noticed that some of these mothers curb it in their children.

"My husband and I spend a great deal of time with Billy. Father and son are real pals. Daddy will get down on the floor and come out as Jack o' Lantern and play. Just as though they were both small boys. We answer his questions as honestly as we can. . . . Sometimes the other children tell what they have been told. Of course Billy tells what he has been told and sticks by it because he knows it is the truth. Do you think this may be a source of the trouble?"

Help Billy Adjust Himself

My reply: "Your child's remarks, in the light of your wholesome instruction, easily could be the major factor. Better make it clear to him that, since some other parents do not explain to their children as you do, he had better not say a word when such matters come up. We must take into account the folkways of any community. From their point of view those mothers easily might suppose your child is a dangerous playmate. Don't expect to change them suddenly. Since, as you say, there are some foreign parents in the neighborhood, your boy may innocently have dropped some unfortunate remarks. In many ways he may seem different to them. Even his fine flights of imagination might annoy them.

"Just patiently go on trying to guide your boy to adapt himself and to win the respect of those parents and their children. Strive to make yourself a welcome newcomer in the neighborhood. Attract the children to your home and be a gracious hostess to them. Encourage your boy to cultivate playmates among those of his own age. And good luck."

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Somebody has asked, Why change horses?

If I had a nag that, after eight years of patient trial, was found to be unruly, hard to catch, hard to bridle and saddle; that had never learned to be bridle-wise; that would pitch and rear at most unexpected times, wouldn't stand without being hamstrung and hogtied, would roll to get the rider off, bite the hand that fed him, and kick and paw even when free; that never took kindly to a currycomb, had four white feet and a wicked eye, and would lay his ears back at anything from a dove to a mud turtle, I sure wouldn't lease him for another four years.

And if I met, even in the middle of a surging stream, a fellow riding a good-looking bay, young enough, and knew how to behave in saddle and harness, one that would pull when hitched to a telegraph pole and never pull back on a halter, I sure would trade right there in the middle of that muddy ford.—R. Isabel writes: "Although I realize that bridge is the open sesame to many social opportunities that I am missing, I simply can't enjoy it because almost whenever I have played it has started disagreeable arguments that have made the game more of an ordeal than a pleasure."

I sympathize with you thoroughly, Isabel. I was launched into contact by just such a crowd who made me feel that I would rather attend a geometry party or a trigonometry party than a bridge party. Both men and women glared or snapped when their partners made misplays and argued over their opponents' claims to winning. Noting that such frictions sometimes developed serious enmities, I retired from the game for more than a year. Then other friends persuaded me to start afresh with them. They are all gifted with a sense of humor and a good-natured tolerance for the mistakes of others. Having for years made it a rule to eliminate from their circle those with the temperament of the first group with whom I played, they make the game a source of pleasure and an occasion for delightful social intercourse.

Readers' Questions Answered

Question: I am planning a home wedding at 11 o'clock in the morning. Is it correct to use candles at this time of the day, and if so, should they be lighted?—J. S. B.

Answer: If you mean candles for the improvised altar, by all means use them—lighted. Altar candles are lighted during any service, regardless of the time. Candles should not appear on a luncheon table, unless the dining room is without daylight. They may be used during a formal afternoon tea when the shades are drawn.

Question: Recently while paying a visit I found that I had neglected to bring along my personal visiting cards. The woman who accompanied me on this visit insisted that I write my name in ink on her visiting card. To please her, I complied, but am now afraid that this was incorrect.—Anne.

Answer: What you did was correct—if you placed your name below the engraving. It should not have been placed above the engraving nor on the back of the card.

Question: My husband has been dead for three months. My son bears his father's name. Should he now drop the "jr." or continue using it?—Widow.

Answer: Your son should drop the "jr." from his name, as it is improper for a man to continue using it after his father is dead.

HIRED MAN FAST

A delegation had called on the state leader at his farm. He received them with his shirt loosened and a pitchfork in his hands.

"Excuse me, boys," he said, leading the way to the barn, "but I've been pitching hay and we can talk while I finish it."

At the barn no hay was in sight.

"Where's the hay?" demanded the politicians.

"Sorry, boss," said the hired man. "I ain't had time to throw it back since you threw it up for the last delegation."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

NO POLITICIAN.

Wendell Willkie irks the politicians.

The politicians have spent a lifetime perhaps, or many years in learning how in their way to control votes and voters, but here is a candidate for the Presidency of the United States who has not held a single public office, not even that of Justice of the Peace. I heard Senator Lucas talk about this the other night over the radio. He seems to be very much disturbed because Wendell Willkie has had no experience in politics. The Senator said that no man without experience in the political game could possibly be able to control the forces in Washington. The Senator recommended Roosevelt as a past master in politics. If politics be a profession where deceit is at a premium, no doubt the President is past master in politics, for he has from the beginning deceived the American people.

A long time ago Ben Franklin was sent by this country to represent it in France, and Benjamin Franklin having had no experience as a politician, told the truth to the Frenchmen and to everyone else with whom he came in contact. They would not believe him; they thought he was just another deceitful politician, and as a consequence, Benjamin Franklin obtained for this nation, everything for which he sought, simply by telling the truth.

Wendell Willkie, in his tremendous campaign for the Presidency of this nation, is just another man of Benjamin Franklin's stripe. He is telling the people the truth. Some believe him and some do not. He is criticised by the New Dealers because, for instance, he splits infinitives, or he talks with an Indiana burr on his tongue; that he makes mistakes in grammar; above all, that he is not a wise politician.

It is about time for this nation to elect a man as its head, as its able man, who makes the habit of telling the truth; who makes the habit of keeping his promises; who is well qualified to handle the business of any great corporation, even the greatest of all—the United States of America. It is an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime to the voters of a nation which still adheres to listening to the voice of the people. It is a great opportunity to elect a man who has no political debts to pay; a man who does not intend to incur any political debts; a man who intends to handle the affairs of the United States of America, as he would his own business affairs.

It will be a wonderful thing if this nation has for its head a man who does not idly make promises which he does not intend to fulfill; a man who will keep his word—come rain, come shine. The people of this nation should not neglect the opportunity of at least trying out such a man.

As far as foreign relations are concerned, the founders of this government, enunciated the principle which Wendell Willkie promises to maintain—"No entangling foreign alliances."

FORCE

Who rules by force may never take his ease
Nor drop his dreary vigil day or night.
His very soul is pawned to dynamite,
To shells to use from skies or under seas.
He must forget there are such prides as these:
Honor and pity, brotherhood and
right.
His constant fear must be that greater might,
Which soon or late the crown from
him shall seize.

Terrible power begets a terrible
fear!
Never so strong is built the barri-
But what a stronger truth and right
will rear.
Who rules by force lives every hour afraid.
Might holds the moment; right out-
lives the year,
So swiftly obsolete are weapons
made.

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)

NEW YORK — Leaders in creative arts look to their roles in the current crisis:

Archibald MacLeish, librarian of congress: "Democracy, to conquer, must again become a fighting cause."

Playwright Robert E. Sherwood: "There is poison gas in the air now—in the free air which we American breath. We must know and recognize its sources."

Nelson A. Rockefeller, the U. S. Cultural Ambassador to the Americas: "A union of the intellectual forces of the Americas is needed. Such a union can bring with it an American renaissance of unlimited possibilities."

Eve Curie: "In France, governments change easily, but not characters, not the people."

Author Somerset Maugham: "Culture isn't a decoration or an ornament; it's the expression of our character and our ideals."

But is it smart to advertise that other cigarettes are "more irritating?" We say our enemies are wicked not wickeder than we are.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

by The Baltimore Sun
(Copyright, 1940)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.

AS Mr. Roosevelt's speech-writing aides prepare the material for the nine speeches in which he is to disclose the alleged "deliberate falsifications" of his opponents, an interesting situation is revealed concerning the oratorical side of the third-term campaign.

ACCORDING to the most authentice journalistic reflectors of the Administration, the oratorical end appears to have flopped. This, plus the formidable gains made by Mr. Willkie in the last few weeks, is responsible for the change in the Roosevelt strategy, the basic idea of which was to have Mr. Roosevelt go clear through the campaign without mentioning his opponent's name and without making a political speech. That no longer seems feasible. It is agreed now that it is essential for Mr. Roosevelt to speak for himself.

HIS managers believe that there is danger in further high-hatting Mr. Willkie and in the Roosevelt assumption that he does not need to seek the votes of the people. On the other hand, they are genuinely confident that five speeches such as his literary aides can produce, and delivered as only Mr. Roosevelt can deliver them, will check the rising Willkie tide and insure an overwhelming Roosevelt victory. That is the way his friends feel, but it is no secret that they had a good deal of difficulty in convincing Mr. Roosevelt that the "draft" pose had to be abandoned and his radio voice used to the limit to charm back the voters alienated by the Willkie attack. It went greatly against the grain for the President to concede that his opponent had become formidable and that there had been any defection from his standard.

WHAT really swung him over, it is understood, was the force with which it was pointed out that neither Mr. Henry Wallace, his "drafted" running mate, nor any one of the ten members of his Cabinet, is capable of carrying the ball for him. On the contrary, without exception they have been oratorical failures. Mr. Wallace, for example, has been unable to get any really national publicity and nothing he has said has made a dent. The feeling among the managers is that to have left the campaign so much to Mr. Wallace was unfortunate in that it made voters think of the possibility of his becoming President and revived the stories about his consultations with astrologers and spiritualists which have been current in Washington for some years.

IT also recalls the circumstances of Mr. Wallace's nomination at Chicago. There, as is well known, with the powerful aid of the Messers. Kelly, Flynn and Hague, Mr. Roosevelt personally coerced a reluctant convention into swallowing Mr. Wallace, thus sidetracking the late Speaker Bankhead, the present Speaker Rayburn, Mr. Jesse Jones, Mr. Louis Johnson, Mr. Paul McNutt and one or two others who thought they had reason to expect his support. Mr. Wallace has done the best he could, and he is a man of many fine qualities and engaging traits. But neither his thoughts nor his personality seems to have been effectively projected in his tour over the country. Some of his smaller meetings—notably in West Virginia and Ohio—have been rather dismal, and the opposition has tended to follow his appearance by reciting the circumstances of his nomination and quoting from the published remarks of some of his friends concerning the possibility that, if elected, Mr. Roosevelt might resign and Mr. Wallace be elevated to the Presidency. It is no exaggeration to say that that idea is not an asset to the third-term campaign.

THESE facts, coupled with the steady gains recently made by Mr. Willkie in all the polls, have perturbed the third-term managers in New York and Washington very much. The net result has been the dropping of the original Roosevelt plan of making no speeches for himself, permitting Mr. Wallace and a few others to carry the ball while he made the "inspection trips" and posed as willing to serve only because an overwhelming majority of the people wanted him.

IT has now been made clear that at least a very formidable minority of the people do not want him at all, and that unless he climbs down off his pedestal and goes after the voters with everything he has this minority may easily become a majority. Accordingly, after the voters he is going, no longer the President willing to sacrifice his personal desires to serve only because the people insist, but a candidate eagerly seeking re-election who is trying to recover lost ground by indicting his opponents and asserting that they "deliberately falsify the facts." And the smart fellows who write his speeches are convinced that such is the charm of his voice and so potent their words in his mouth that he easily can do so.

Rev. William Wilson McKinney, Ph. D., moderator of the Synod of Pennsylvania, was guest of honor and principal speaker Thursday evening when members of the Men's Union of Shenango Presbytery had their annual dinner meeting in the First Presbyterian church, corner of North Jefferson and Falls streets.

This group is comprised of Presbyterian men of Lawrence County. J. Audley Boak, president, was in charge of the meeting with Allen Davis leading the singing and E. E. Branstetter at the piano.

The address of welcome to the men was delivered by Attorney Robert M. White.

At the business session, the following officers were elected to serve for two years: President, H. W. Smith, of Ellwood City; vice president, George R. McClelland, of Central Presbyterian church, and secretary-treasurer, Earl Cox, of Westfield church.

Rev. McKinney delivered his most interesting address after the men had gone into the church from the dining room.

Worship was conducted by Rev Homer K. Miller, pastor of Rich Hill church and moderator of Shenango Presbytery.

We are much like the English. Once they put a crown on a man, he seems more than human because he wears a crown.

As Bombs Fell—

A gaping hole can be seen in the roof of St. Paul's cathedral in London while debris is piled high in front of the high altar which was wrecked by a German bomb during a recent air raid. This picture is the first original to reach the United States of the damage inside St. Paul's.

FOOD POISONING

When a single case of food poisoning of either a child or adult occurs in a community, it is of the utmost importance that the cause be found at once. Otherwise, the source of the poison may go undetected until numbers of persons are similarly infected and exposed to death.

Food poisoning was formerly generally referred to as ptomaine poisoning. Ptomains are not disease germs. They are nitrogenous basic substances, produced by bacteria in dead animal or vegetable matter, and some are highly poisonous. We know more about them today and now we usually refer to food poisoning as exactly that, for the ptomains are seldom the actual culprits. Usually the illness can be traced to milk, meat or other foods tainted by disease.

When doctors in a community find that they are having to attend a number of cases combining upset stomach, fever and diarrhea, they become suspicious and investigate. Often it is found that all the patients attended the same picnic or social gathering, or have been eating food from the same meat store, dairy or other outlet.

There was an outbreak of food poisoning in a nearby town not long ago. Investigation showed that all the patients had eaten at the same little restaurant. Further questioning made it clear that while they had chosen various soups, meats, etc., all had eaten mince pie as dessert. That discovery brought out the fact the proprietor had found a bargain in mince meat and had laid in a supply. One element of the mince meat was contaminated and had poisoned the pies.

Another outbreak also occurred in another town in much the same way, only there custard pie was to blame—it had been made with infected raw milk.

Doctors who discover an epidemic of food poisoning know by experience where to look first for the cause of the trouble—dairy products, custards, cream fillings, dressings, meat pies, sandwiches. Health departments are informed when the food suspected of causing the poisoning is located, a broth emulsion is made, and to test it, kittens are injected with it. By using emulsions of all of several inspected food on different kittens, the actual offender can be found quickly.

If it is found to come from milk or meat, as is usually the case, then the source of the food must be investigated and the cause of the infection discovered. Sometimes when meat is the cause of the infection, the investigation must be carried right back to the abbatoir and occasionally even back to the farm that raised the animals I recall one epidemic of food poisonings among children that was traced to unhealthy conditions under which candy Easter eggs were manufactured. The candy factory was farming out the work of putting the sugar designs on the large chocolate eggs, to men and women who did the work in their own homes, most of which were poor and unsanitary.

In all cases of food poisoning, the patient should be kept lying quietly, and in any but very light cases, the stomach should be cleared out. Of course, this should only be done by a medical man for the proper treatment will depend upon the particular food that caused the poisoning.

Episcopal Laymen To Attend Sunday Rally In Oil City

The annual Laymen's conference of Episcopal churches of the Diocese of Erie will be held Sunday, October 27, at 3 p. m. in Christ Episcopal church, Oil City, under the sponsorship of the Diocesan Laymen's League and field department of the church.

Large delegations will represent Trinity Episcopal church and St. Andrew's church, this city, and St. Luke's Episcopal church, Ellwood City.

The conference will be unusually interesting this year since it follows so closely the triennial general convention of the national church, held at Kansas City from October 9 to 20. Speakers will include Rev. Phillip C. Pearson, New Castle, and Frank Mallett of Sharon, who represented the Diocese of Erie at the national convention.

Harry J. Cullifford, president of the Trinity church branch of the Laymen's League, states that members will leave from the Guild room of Trinity at 1:30 p. m. Delegates from St. Andrew's church, Long avenue, will leave from the church at 1:30 p. m., according to Lewis P. Dean, president of the branch at St. Andrew's.

CASTLEWOOD

Homecoming day at the Harmony Baptist church will be November 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cowan spent the week end with friends in Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Henderson and family spent Sunday with relatives in Ellwood City.

Margaret Long, of New Castle, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Long and family.

Mrs. Herbert Reno and daughter, of Ellwood City, spent Saturday with Mrs. Clark Reno.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown and children have returned home from their cabin in Elk county.

Mr. and Mrs. Loy McHattie and daughter, of Ellwood City, spent Sunday afternoon with friends here.

The Ladies Missionary Society will present a sport program and exhibit their white cross work next Sunday morning.

The October meeting of the C. S. club was held in the home of Mrs. Hazel McHattie in Ellwood City on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hutchinson and children and Mrs. Wayne Kemp, of New Castle, visited at the Conrad Houk home Friday evening.

Mrs. Annie McDanel of Beaver Falls, Mrs. C. D. Cook, and Mrs. C. H. Cook of Ellwood City, and Mrs. Edna White of this place spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Davis of Jacksville.

Members of the Ladies' Missionary Society met last Thursday at the church for a tureen dinner and spent the day in doing white cross work. Mrs. Ruth Currie had charge of the program, and special guests were Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Gibson, and Mrs. Wier.

The Truth Seekers Class of the Baptist church met Saturday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jones with 30 persons present. A hallowe'en party was enjoyed and during the business meeting the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Joseph Cowan; vice president, Harry Koach; secretary, Mrs. Harry Koach; assistant secretary, Mrs. Marie Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. C. Hogue; flower fund committee, Mrs. V. Hogue and Mrs. Flora St. John.

Can't we learn anything from the mistakes of others? It was only the want of swift and bold action that brought ruin to France and tragedy to England.

ARTHUR BERGLAND IS GUEST ARTIST

Arthur Bergland, well known pianist, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Bergland of 329 Laurel boulevard, will be guest artist at a concert to be given in the Butler Art Institute on Wick avenue, Youngstown, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Bergland has chosen the second movement of the impressive composition—"Sonata Pathetique" by Beethoven.

A partisan is funny. You may think his character and his family imperfect and be forgiven, but not if you think his candidate imperfect.

Beware of

CRAMPED TOES

Children's feet grow fast! Therefore, mothers should always be on the alert to see that the children do not wear outgrown shoes! When the shoes are too short, deformities and ailments may result. Such painful foot ills as hammer toes, bunions, corns, ingrown toe nails and other ailments can be prevented if the proper shoes are worn during the formative years. Remember, the shoe should be one-half inch longer than the great toe.

FOOD POISONING

When a single case of food poisoning of either a child or adult occurs in a community, it is of the utmost importance that the cause be found at once. Otherwise, the source of the poison may go undetected until numbers of persons are similarly infected and exposed to death.

Food poisoning was formerly generally referred to as ptomaine poisoning. Ptomains are not disease germs. They are nitrogenous basic substances, produced by bacteria in dead animal or vegetable matter, and some are highly poisonous. We know more about them today and now we usually refer to food poisoning as exactly that, for the ptomains are seldom the actual culprits. Usually the illness can be traced to milk, meat or other foods tainted by disease.

When doctors in a community find that they are having to attend a number of cases combining upset stomach, fever and diarrhea, they become suspicious and investigate. Often it is found that all the patients attended the same picnic or social gathering, or have been eating food from the same meat store, dairy or other outlet.

There was an outbreak of food poisoning in a nearby town not long ago. Investigation showed that all the patients had eaten at the same little restaurant. Further questioning made it clear that while they had chosen various soups, meats, etc., all had eaten mince pie as dessert. That discovery brought out the fact the proprietor had found a bargain in mince meat and had laid in a supply. One element of the mince meat was contaminated and had poisoned the pies.

Another outbreak also occurred in another town in much the same way, only there custard pie was to blame—it had been made with infected raw milk.

Doctors who discover an epidemic of food poisoning know by experience where to look first for the cause of the trouble—dairy products, custards, cream fillings, dressings, meat pies, sandwiches. Health departments are informed when the food suspected of causing the poisoning is located, a broth emulsion is made, and to test it, kittens are injected with it. By using emulsions of all of several inspected food on different kittens, the actual offender can be found quickly.

If it is found to come from milk or meat, as is usually the case, then the source of the food must be investigated and the cause of the infection discovered. Sometimes when meat is the cause of the infection, the investigation must be carried right back to the abbatoir and occasionally even back to the farm that raised the animals I recall one epidemic of food poisonings among children that was traced to unhealthy conditions under which candy Easter eggs were manufactured. The candy factory was farming out the work of putting the sugar designs on the large chocolate eggs, to men and women who did the work in their own homes, most of which were poor and unsanitary.

In all cases of food poisoning, the patient should be kept lying quietly, and in any but very light cases, the stomach should be cleared out. Of course, this should only be done by a medical man for the proper treatment will depend upon the particular food that caused the poisoning.

Episcopal Laymen To Attend Sunday Rally In Oil City

The annual Laymen's conference of Episcopal churches of the Diocese of Erie will be hed Sunday, October 27, at 3 p. m. in Christ Episcopal church, Oil City, under the sponsorship of the Diocesan Laymen's League and field department of the church.

Large delegations will represent Trinity Episcopal church and St. Andrew's church, this city, and St. Luke's Episcopal church, Ellwood City.

The conference will be unusually interesting this year since it follows so closely the triennial general convention of the national church held at Kansas City from October 9 to 20. Speakers will include Rev Philip C. Pearson, New Castle, and Frank Mallett of Sharon, who represented the Diocese of Erie at the national convention.

Harry J. Culliford, president of the Trinity church branch of the Laymen's League, states that members will leave from the Guild room of Trinity at 1:30 p. m. Delegates from St. Andrew's church, Long avenue, will leave from the church at 1:30 p. m., according to Lewis P. Dean, president of the branch at St. Andrew's.

The Truth Seekers Class of the Baptist church met Saturday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Jones with 30 persons present. A hallowe'en party was enjoyed and during the business meeting the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. Joseph Cowan; vice president, Harry Koach; secretary, Mrs. Harry Koach; assistant secretary, Mrs. Marie Thompson; treasurer, Mrs. C. Hogue; flower fund committee, Mrs. V. Hogue and Mrs. Flora St. John.

Can't we learn anything from the mistakes of others? It was only the want of swift and bold action that brought ruin to France and tragedy to England.

Prosperity Best Defense For U. S. Is Babson's View

By ROGER W. BABSON
Copyright—1940—Publishers Financial Bureau

BABSON PARK, Mass., Oct. 25.—I have said in recent articles that business is getting better. As long as the defense program continues to broaden there will be no lessening of activity. Year-end reports will show more plus than minus signs. Manufacturers and other business men are throwing away the red ink bottles and stocking up on black. It takes time for war production to get under way. The country is still in the inertia stage. Once the initial problems of planning, financing, and production are overcome, things should move fast.

BABSON

Don't Be Impatient

With machine tool companies working day and night to provide the necessary equipment, there is a scarcity of skilled labor. Men must be trained for many important and technically-skilled jobs. Blueprints must be drawn, sources of supplies arranged, transportation schedules by rail and highway checked. Lawyers must study contracts, prices be determined and bank loans negotiated. Our industrial areas are coming to a state of intense activity.

The great agricultural sections of the country have not yet felt the increased tempo of our industrial cities. However, as movement of the business cycle swings from east to west, all sections of our land will ultimately be caught up in this rush to arm. Young and old, rich and poor, will all take more of a part in whatever the future holds.

Business Will Improve

War prosperity for some few people is a delightful state to contemplate. Unfortunately, such people do not come into contact with the actualities of war. These are far more cruel than those of the last conflict. My business associates know that I never side-step a scrap. I thrive on trouble. Give me some new upset to face each day and I am a happy man. I am no pacifist in business, religion or war, and I am all set for any actual participation in the current fight abroad. But I also know that when our enemies suffer we also suffer in the end.

Dividends may increase, but total incomes of business men and investors will be drastically reduced by taxes. Even war talk and a feeling that the right side is winning brings increased activity in the stock market. The demand for labor will put more money into the pockets of the man on Main Street and into the tills of stores. Only unbiased historians years hence will be able to judge whether or not wars ever provide lasting economic values. Surely, real prosperity can come from our present situation only as it strengthens our character and teaches us needed lessons.

Let's Remember 1929

Unfortunately, we have not yet recovered from the effects of the last war. Furthermore, fundamentally, we profited little from it, either financially or spiritually. We had a slump in business after the armistice, followed by several years of rising values. Then came the swift kick in the pants so many of us remember. Now, we are on the eve of another great outbreak. God grant that it will not come before we are prepared.

Our country is like a sick child who before recovering from an ear abscess breaks out with chicken pox. We are not yet out of the depression starting in 1929. Temporarily, the economic situation will ease up, bringing us to a false sense of security and prosperity. Geographically our country is so large, and our numbers and resources so great, that many have the impression we cannot be licked. However, in Hitler's eyes we are already tottering from inetrnal labor troubles and congressional fights.

Prosperity Best Defense

Germany now has the great bulk of the resources of the Continent, let alone the Scandinavian countries. With this backing, anything can happen to us economically. One saving grace is that in all history no man has yet conquered the world. If I have learned anything in the last 40 years, it concerns man's frailty. Some day a leader will rise in some other country who will be Hitler's match. Until then, we must keep prepared economically as well as militarily for whichever way the tide turns.

I may sound like an alarmist. If so, forgive me. I am anxious only that we Americans are not caught sleeping, economically, at the switch. I am hopeful, too, that all will realize the price our young people must some day pay for the present expenditures and brief respite from unemployment. Hitler has no idea of invading the United States as long as our people are prosperous. He, however, believes that through labor and political dissensions, unemployment will be so great that and our people so divided that we will turn to Fascism as a remedy.

As my grandchildren constantly remind me, times have changed. Our conception of money and wealth will change. It no longer takes money, as we know it, to finance Germany. If it were of any real value, the gold which we have buried at Fort Knox would guarantee our own and England's salvation. No, money is today of little real value. We must have tangible resources, the courage to sacrifice, and the character to eep our heads.

Prohibition Rally Has Been Postponed

Confliction Of Dates Makes It Impossible For Speaker To Appear Here

Paul M. McGaffic, County Chairman of the Prohibition party, announced today that the meeting which had been planned for Thursday evening, October 31, at the First Presbyterian church, has been postponed, due to the inability of the speaker, Clinton Howard, to come here on that date.

Mr. Howard, head of the National Reform Association was unable to come here for this meeting, and an attempt will probably be made to have him here later.

Tax Installments Will Be Accepted

Council Passing Measure To Provide For Quarterly Payments Of City Taxes

During the meeting in the city building Thursday council adopted an ordinance which provides for the quarterly payment of city taxes in 1940 and thereafter. The act of July 25, 1932, permits this and council enacted the legislation following a recommendation of City Treasurer McKibben.

The measures say that payment of the first installment of taxes before April 1, shall conclusively evidence an intention to pay taxes on the installment plan. This shall be one-fourth of the amount levied against any property or upon any person.

The second installment shall be in an equal amount and one-fourth of the whole tax and shall be due on or before July 1. The other payments will be due October 1 and on or before January 1, 1941.

Penalties for failure to pay any installments of taxes when the taxpayer has chosen and elected to make such installment payments as provided in the act of assembly and the city ordinance shall be charged and collected as provided in the act of assembly.

On the first day of May, 1942, and on the first day of May in each year hereafter, the city treasurer shall prepare a separate list, showing all city taxes due and unpaid for the year immediately prior thereto, which taxes the taxpayers have chosen and elected to pay in installments.

Upon the list he shall compute and charge a penalty of five percent on all amounts unpaid, which are less than one-half of the total tax levied for that year; and a penalty of eight percent upon all amounts which are one-half or more of the said total tax.

The list the city treasurer shall return to the city solicitor, as provided by law, separate and apart from the list of delinquent taxes for the said year, which taxes the taxpayers have nor chosen or elected to pay by installments.

Hallowe'en Parade At New Wilmington

Annual Program Is Being Arranged For College Town, October 31

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Oct. 24—Witches, goblins, pirates, dwarfs, and other fantastic apparitions, the products of a vivid imagination, will turn out in full force Thursday evening, October 31, when about 100 masqueraders are expected to participate in the annual New Wilmington mummer's parade.

Meeting in front of the school at 7 o'clock, the Hallowe'eners will be led in parade formation through the streets of the town by the high school band. The entourage is expected to reach the Community House at about 8 o'clock where a special entertainment program will be held.

As in past years, ten prizes will be awarded to the ten best costumes of the evening. The child having the best costume, in the opinion of the judges, in the pre-school age division, in the high school division, and in each of the eight grammar school grades will be awarded prizes. Judges will be appointed sometime next week.

In addition to the costume contest, an interesting program has been planned for the enjoyment of the children. A motion picture will be shown during the evening and a treat will be given to the masqueraders. An attempt has been made to obtain the picture, "Orphan Annie" for the evening, but it is not known at this time whether the picture can be obtained. In the event that it is impossible, another film of special interest to the children will be shown.

Walt Whitman, principal of the school, announced Wednesday that Hallowe'en parties will be held in each of the four grade school rooms prior to the time of the parade. These parties will be held in the school after the regular session has been let out for the day, each teacher having complete charge of her room.

The event is being sponsored by the public school faculty in collaboration with the Community Chest. Adults are specially invited to attend the program—masked or otherwise.

The strange part is that business men trust Willkie, who agrees with Roosevelt in everything except his opinion of business men.

Willkie Extends Inquiry When No Response On Third Term Is Received

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ABOARD WILLKIE SPECIAL, ENROUTE WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 25—Wendell Willkie centered his fire on the third term—and possibly a fourth term—as he swung through pivotal upstate New York today enroute to the Pennsylvania anthracite fields for a nationally broadcast address tonight.

At Jamestown, N. Y., Willkie reasserted his charge before a trainside audience of 12,000 people that President Roosevelt's speech in Philadelphia was "of the 1932 vintage, and certainly no later than 1936" and then declared:

"Since he (Mr. Roosevelt) has refrained from any statement about his views on a third term, I would like to know his views on a fourth term.

"There is no argument that can be advanced for three terms that cannot be advanced for a fourth term."

AROUND CITY HALL

Approximately 425 men were employed during the week on city-WPA projects according to City Engineer Glenn R. Throop, who also announced the completion of paving in Cherry street which is now open to traffic. One quarter of the paving has been finished in Warren avenue between East Washington street and Stanton avenue and a stone base is being laid in Oak street which is to be paved. Construction of stone walls along Big Run is under way and stone is being taken from the East Brook Street and West Washington Street extension quarries. The city also proposes soon to begin an improvement of the State Street hill for the purpose of eliminating a dangerous curve in the middle of the hill. According to city engineer the north bank will be cut back approximately 15 feet. As yet it is unknown whether or not the city will be required to lay the brick.

There has been a constant demand here for the improvement of Highland Avenue and East Washington Streets. Highland Avenue is a continuation of the Highland Heights-New Wilmington route and East Washington Street is a main road to Ellwood City.

It is unlikely that Cascade boulevard will be soil-cemented this year because of cost. However, it may develop that the city will deem the boulevard of such importance that it will be fixed before Cascade Park opens next summer. When the road was given a hardening surface several years ago the plea was that it would divert travel from East Washington street and help to solve the traffic riddle.

The road surface was permitted to deteriorate. A soil-cement material might make it a pleasing road to travel next summer.

Provide Change In Zoning Law

Council Passing Amendment To Meet Asserted Defect In City Law

Because of an asserted defect in the zoning ordinance of 1925, which failed to fix a buiding line, Councilman D. O. Davies, in city council session Thursday introduced a bill designed to correct the situation. The measure was sent to committee then reported favorably, and pending passage, will be printed.

The action grew out of a complaint made to council recently that a Hazelcroft avenue property was being erected beyond the building line.

The bill introduced today was an amendment to the zoning ordinance and follows:

"In any residence district where a front yard has been provided for the majority of the buildings on one side of the street, between two intersecting streets no building or structure hereafter erected or altered shall be placed nearer to the street line than the average depth of the front yards thus established at the time of the passage of this ordinance; nor shall any building or structure be erected, any part of which shall be nearer to the street line than the front line of any building already erected upon the same side of the said street, between the nearest intersecting streets, or which shall be nearer to the said street line than the minimum building line which shall have been established between intersecting streets; provided that these regulations shall not be so interpreted as to reduce the buildable width of a corner lot facing an intersecting street of record at the time of the passage of this ordinance to less than three-fourths of the width of the lot."

The zoning ordinance was adopted December 14, 1925.

Relief Rolls In State Are Lower

Further Cut In Civil Service Employes Handling Relief Is Foreseen

By JOHN PAGET
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—On the basis of continued shrinking of Pennsylvania's relief rolls, reflecting improved industrial conditions, the department of public assistance today indicated additional furloughs would be made among civil service employes.

Although approximately 1500 workers have been furloughed since January 1, the department payroll lists 7,495 employes throughout the state. Furloughs will be made on the basis of ratings established periodically by a merit system. Officials declined to comment concerning the number to be cut from the payroll.

At the same time, officials hailed the department's record in apprehending relief "chiselers" who returned $417,498.17 to general assistance coffers during the first eight months of this year as compared with $541,739 during 1939. Reimbursement agreements, secured by the controversial $2,000 bond assuring return of some money from property-owning relief recipients, aided the department to recover $386,716.86 during 1939 as compared with $347,555.36 during the first eight months of 1940. Eighty-three investigators review each case to make certain relief money is received by those really in need.

Officials also were confident that the present downward trend in assistance rolls would enable the state to operate during the next four months on the balance of the $70,850,000 appropriated at the special session of the legislature last spring.

CHRISTIAN MOTIVES FOR ABSTINENCE

Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Three members of a temperance society

"For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit."—Rom. 14:17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 27 is Luke 1:13-16; 2:40; 4:4; 6:21, 25, 43-45, the Golden Text being Rom. 14:17, "For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.)

Two previous lessons, telling of the birth of John the Baptist and Jesus, have prepared us for the lesson today. This lesson sets forth the Christian motives for abstinence from intoxicating liquors for International Temperance Sunday.

You remember that when the angel announced to Zacharias, the priest, that he would have a son, the angel said: "And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and he shall drink no wine nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb."

Few parents in the world have this wonderful assurance that their sons will grow up to be good men and women, giving them only joy and happiness. They can only trust that with love and wise up-bringing they will so develop. Too many raise their children only to have them grow away from the high standards set by the parents. Some parents, too, sorrow for their children's wrong doing when the young people only follow the example set them by said parents.

You remember, too, that the angel told Mary, "thou shalt bring forth a son, and shalt call His name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest."

Here were two mothers who did not have to worry about their sons—at least about their conduct. Each "turned many of the children of Israel to the Lord, their God," as was prophesied about John, and each suffered martyrdom.

John Grows Strong

We know little of John's childhood and growth into manhood. At the end of the first chapter of Luke, he says of John, "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel."

Of Jesus it was said: "And the child grew, and waxed strong, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him." Jesus developed like ordinary boys, learned to walk and to talk, to notice things to ask questions. He must have been a great joy to His gentle mother as He grew in body and in spirit. What a companion He must have been to her.

Each child grew up in a pious family, with parents who not only obeyed earthly laws, but also lived the life of the spirit. How much better chance have modern children who live in Christian homes, with parents who obey God's laws, to grow up into strong, earnest characters, than those who have no such privilege. That they do not always so grow and develop is one of the sad things of life.

After Jesus' baptism by John He was tempted by Satan, who took him into the wilderness for 40 days, during which time He ate nothing, and was hungry. Then Satan said, "If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread."

But Jesus answered the tempter, "It is written that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Bread nourishes the body. We cannot live without food and water, but what poor lives we live if we do not have something more than nourishment for our bodies, if we do not have food for our spirits, too.

Later Jesus was teaching and healing the people, and as they crowded about Him he said to them—the poor, hungry and sad—"Blessed are ye that hunger now; for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now; for ye shall laugh."

Sorrow does not last. The hungry are usually fed, even bodily food; and the grief passes. Those who have hungered often times are thereafter more sympathetic with others and help those poorer than themselves. Those who have wept know how to sympathize with others in their grief, and learn to be happy again.

All who grow "strong in spirit," refusing to be tempted into unworthy ways of living, reap the reward in physical well-being and—which is more important—in strong character and spiritual health.

"Each tree is known by its fruit," said Jesus. "For there is no good tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit; nor again a corrupt tree that bringeth forth good fruit.

"The good man out of the good treasure of his hearth bringeth that which is evil; for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh."

On this day dedicated to world temperance, let us consider the word of our Golden Text: "For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit." Let us dedicate ourselves to this joy and peace.

WATER, WATER, ETC.

Birds and animals often starve to death in the midst of plenty . . . because they do not know that unfamiliar foods are good to eat . . . for instance, it took two or three years for quail in Florida and Georgia to find out that millet and other grains, planted for them were good to eat.

The game of dice is very old. Psalmedes, of Greece, is said to have originated it in 1244 B. C. Dice unearthed from the ruins of Thebes are almost identical with modern dice

Relief Rolls In State Are Lower

International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—On the basis of continued shrinking of Pennsylvania's relief rolls, reflecting improved industrial conditions, the department of public assistance today indicated additional furloughs would be made among civil service employes.

Although approximately 1500 workers have been furloughed since January 1, the department payroll lists 7,495 employes throughout the state. Furloughs will be made on the basis of ratings established periodically by a merit system. Officials declined to comment concerning the number to be cut from the payroll.

At the same time, officials hailed the department's record in apprehending relief "chiselers" who returned $417,498.17 to general assistance coffers during the first eight months of this year as compared with $541,739 during 1939. Reimbursement agreements, secured by the controversial $2,000 bond assuring return of some money from property-owning relief recipients, aided the department to recover $386,716.86 during 1939 as compared with $347,555.36 during the first eight months of 1940. Eighty-three investigators review each case to make certain relief money is received by those really in need.

Officials also were confident that the present downward trend in assistance rolls would enable the state to operate during the next four months on the balance of the $70,850,000 appropriated at the special session of the legislature last spring.

Special Service At Neshannock Church

Guest Speaker To Be Heard At Thank-Offering Program On Sunday Evening

A special service will be held in Neshannock U. P. church Sunday evening, October 27, at 8 o'clock. The program is sponsored by the two Missionary societies of the church and will include their regular Thank-Offering and talk by Dora Mason.

Miss Mason is sent out by the Foreign Mission Board of the United Presbyterian church on deputational work. Her work began in Egypt as early as 1919 and at the present time she occupies a teaching position in the Pressly Memorial Institute. Quoting from a letter received from the Board Secretary, "No one has been more closely associated with the womanhood of Egypt than Miss Mason, and no one can speak with more authority." She fills a speaking engagement in Mercer, Sunday morning, and will come with pictures and a message for this evening service.

CHRISTIAN MOTIVES FOR ABSTINENCE

Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Three members of a temperance society

"For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit."—Rom. 14:17.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 27 is Luke 1:13-16; 2:40; 4:4; 6:21, 25, 43-45, the Golden Text being Rom. 14:17, "For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.)

Two previous lessons, telling of the birth of John the Baptist and Jesus, have prepared us for the lesson today. This lesson sets forth the Christian motives for abstinence from intoxicating liquors for International Temperance Sunday.

You remember that when the angel announced to Zacharias, the priest, that he would have a son, the angel said: "And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord, and he shall drink no wine nor strong drink, and he shall be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother's womb."

Few parents in the world have this wonderful assurance that their sons will grow up to be good men and women, giving them only joy and happiness. They can only trust that with love and wise up-bringing they will so develop. Too many raise their children only to have them grow away from the high standards set by the parents. Some parents, too, sorrow for their children's wrong doing when the young people only follow the example set them by said parents.

You remember, too, that the angel told Mary, "thou shalt bring forth a son, and shalt call His name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest."

Here were two mothers who did not have to worry about their sons—at least about their conduct. Each turned many of the children of Israel to the Lord, their God," as was prophesied about John, and each suffered martyrdom.

John Grows Strong

We know little of John's childhood and growth into manhood. At the end of the first chapter of Luke, he says of John, "And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, and was in the deserts till the day of his shewing unto Israel."

Of Jesus it was said: "And the child grew, and waxed strong, filled with wisdom; and the grace of God was upon him." Jesus developed like ordinary boys, learned to walk and to talk, to notice things to ask questions. He must have been a great joy to His gentle mother as He grew in body and in spirit. What a companion He must have been to her.

Each child grew up in a pious family, with parents who not only obeyed earthly laws, but also lived the life of the spirit. How much better chance have modern children who live in Christian homes, with parents who obey God's laws, to grow up into strong, earnest characters, than those who have no such privilege. That they do not always so grow and develop is one of the sad things of life.

After Jesus' baptism by John He was tempted by Satan, who took him into the wilderness for 40 days, during which time He ate nothing, and was hungry. Then Satan said, "If thou be the Son of God, command this stone that it be made bread."

But Jesus answered the tempter, "It is written that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God." Bread nourishes the body. We cannot live without food and water, but what poor lives we live if we do not have something more than nourishment for our bodies, if we do not have food for our spirits, too.

Later Jesus was teaching and healing the people, and as they crowded about Him he said to them—the poor, hungry and sad—"Blessed are ye that hunger now; for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now; for ye shall laugh."

Sorrow does not last. The hungry are usually fed, even bodily food; and the grief passes. Those who have hungered often times are thereafter more sympathetic with others and help those poorer than themselves. Those who have wept know how to sympathize with others in their grief, and learn to be happy again.

All who grow "strong in spirit," refusing to be tempted into unworthy ways of living, reap the reward in physical well-being and—which is more important—in strong character and spiritual health.

"Each tree is known by its fruit," said Jesus. "For there is no good tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit; nor again a corrupt tree that bringeth forth good fruit.

"The good man out of the good treasure of his hearth bringeth that which is evil; for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh."

On this day dedicated to world temperance, let us consider the word of our Golden Text: "For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit." Let us dedicate ourselves to this joy and peace.

WATER, WATER, ETC.

Birds and animals often starve to death in the midst of plenty . . . because they do not know that unfamiliar foods are good to eat . . . for instance, it took two or three years for quail in Florida and Georgia to find out that millet and other grains, planted for them were good to eat.

The game of dice is very old. Psalmedes, of Greece, is said to have originated it in 1244 B. C. Dice unearthed from the ruins of Thebes are almost identical with modern dice

Ownership Of Gun Is Traced

Police Report Gun Bought By Pittsburgh Man Who Was Shot

STORIES CONFLICT IN SHOOTING CASE

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25. — The death gun used in the saying of Mrs. Hartstein and the near-fatal shooting of her husband, Sigmund, 55-year-old hardware merchant, was sold to Hartstein himself in 1931, Detective Inspector Walter C. Monaghan disclosed today.

Twelve hours prior to that development, Hartstein swore on his word as a dying man that his daughter's boy friend shot him and his wife without warning as they entered their palatial Squirrel Hill home late Wednesday night.

Monaghan said the revolver was traced to a Cleveland hardware dealer through its serial number, and that it had been purchased by Hartstein on March 7, 1931. The wounded man told detectives last night that the only revolver he possessed was an old, rusty one, but that he did not know its whereabouts in the house.

Hartstein's statement completely contradicted Louis Kleinberg's pronouncement that he fired in self-defense after protesting against the parental objections that forced him and Evelyn Hartstein, 22, to carry on their romance secretly.

Makes Statement

Fully aware that his life was slowly ebbing away, Hartstein told county detectives that a hail of bullets greeted him and his wife, Ann, 47, as they returned home from a downtown theater. His wife was killed instantly, and he was struck in the abdomen, saved from a probable earlier death by a pocket watch that deflected the course of the bullet.

Hospital physicians planned to give him a blood transfusion today.

Kleinberg, 30, and unemployed, reenacted the shooting yesterday for the benefit of a police photographer. He claimed that he had waited on the street until the Hartsteins came home from the show and had asked Hartstein for a "show down on why he objected to his association with Evelyn when the latter allegedly pulled a gun on him. Kleinberg said he wrested the revolver from him, and opened fire wildly when he thought Mrs. Hartstein was rummaging in her purse for another gun.

Kleinberg worked for Hartstein at one time.

An unusually large verdict was returned Thursday morning by the jury trying the case of Clara Headland against George Schuster and the Midwest Haulers, Inc., the jury giving Mrs. Headland $6564.75 damages for injuries incurred in an automobile accident.

The accident occurred on the Harlansburg road in 1939 and the plaintiff testified that her health had been impaired and her eyesight injured.

In the case of Stephen De Masi against John Hudson the jury returned a verdict for $112.23 for damages to DeMasi and his truck.

In the office of Register and Recorder Orville Potter the will of Mrs. Eleanor M. Craig, late of New Castle, has been probated. A granddaughter, Margaret Peters Craig, is bequeathed $10,000 and a grandson, James Sholes Weaver, a like amount. Betty Norval McKee is left $1500, as are Florence Elizabeth McKee, Margaret Woods Elder and Elizabeth D. Reis. A son, Earl M. Craig, is left $50,000 to invest and reinvest, out of which a monthly income is to be paid to Anna Valeria Campbell, this never to be less than $1800 per year. At the death of Anna Valeria Campbell the principal sum goes to Earl M. Craig and Margaret Craig Weaver. Bequests of $1500 each are made to Charlotte A. Sadler and Jesse H. Gardner, and $1000 to Mrs. Elizabeth Gross. For each child of a son, Earl M. Craig and Margaret Craig Weaver, living at the time of the death of Mrs. Craig $5000 is left in trust. The interest in the Joseph W. Craig estate goes to Earl M. Craig in trust and when the estate is liquidated it goes to Earle M. Craig and Margaret Craig Weaver, and they also get the residue of the estate of Mrs. Craig.

Police Report Gun Bought By Pittsburgh Man Who Was Shot

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25. — The death gun used in the saying of Mrs. Hartstein and the near-fatal shooting of her husband, Sigmund, 55-year-old hardware merchant, was sold to Hartstein himself in 1931, Detective Inspector Walter C. Monaghan disclosed today.

Twelve hours prior to that development, Hartstein swore on his word as a dying man that his daughter's boy friend shot him and his wife without warning as they entered their palatial Squirrel Hill home late Wednesday night.

Monaghan said the revolver was traced to a Cleveland hardware dealer through its serial number, and that it had been purchased by Hartstein on March 7, 1931. The wounded man told detectives last night that the only revolver he possessed was an old, rusty one, but that he did not know its whereabouts in the house.

Hartstein's statement completely contradicted Louis Kleinberg's pronouncement that he fired in self-defense after protesting against the parental objections that forced him and Evelyn Hartstein, 22, to carry on their romance secretly.

Makes Statement

Fully aware that his life was slowly ebbing away, Hartstein told county detectives that a hail of bullets greeted him and his wife, Ann, 47, as they returned home from a downtown theater. His wife was killed instantly, and he was struck in the abdomen, saved from a probable earlier death by a pocket watch that deflected the course of the bullet.

Hospital physicians planned to give him a blood transfusion today.

Kleinberg, 30, and unemployed, re-enacted the shooting yesterday for the benefit of a police photographer. He claimed that he had waited on the street until the Hartsteins came home from the show and had asked Hartstein for a "show down on why he objected to his association with Evelyn when the latter allegedly pulled a gun on him. Kleinberg said he wrested the revolver from him, and opened fire wildly when he thought Mrs. Hartstein was rummaging in her purse for another gun.

Kleinberg worked for Hartstein at one time.

Nazi Report On Bombings

"Retaliation" For Night Raid On Berlin Brings London Attacks Says Berlin

BRITISH START FIRES IN BERLIN

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Retaliating for a night raid on Berlin, during which long-range British bombers rained incendiary and explosive bombs on the German capital, German warplanes today carried out attacks on London, according to a Nazi high command announcement.

Beginning early in the morning, a communique reported, German planes carried out steady raids on the British capital. Numerous bombs, including several of the heaviest calibre, reportedly were dropped on military objectives in the city. Targets were described as "effectively hit".

During the British night attack on Berlin several fires were started in the capital.

Although the raiding planes penetrated to the heart of the city on two occasions, the planes seemed to be concentrating their attack on the northwest and the southwest sections.

According to an official announcement the damage was confined to residential sections and working quarters. Some injuries were reported.

The raid, which was ushered in with the rolling thunder of anti-aircraft guns, seemed less violent than previous British attacks on the capital.

U. S. Drifting Toward War Says Hoover

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—The United States is "steadily drifting toward war" today, according to former President Herbert Hoover, who made a slashing attack on President Roosevelt's third term drive in a campaign speech for Wendell L. Willkie here last night.

The New Deal, Hoover charged, is developing what he described as "an American breed of totalitarianism". Vast increases in the president's personal power are heading the nation's economic system toward "national socialism", the former chief executive charged.

"It is not only a tradition against a third term about which we are concerned," Hoover said.

"We are concerned with a vital check upon the rise of personal power in this republic. There has been a gigantic building up of personal power of the president in the last two terms. The president himself admits these powers provide shackles upon liberty which may be dangerous. Many of these extraordinary powers have been obtained under the claims of emergencies which proved not to exist or have expired. And despite many promises, there has been no return of these dangerous powers or the unused powers or those which proved futile or those for which emergencies have passed. In building up these powers the independence of the supreme court and of the congress and the local government have been degraded. Methods of intellectual dishonesty have been used in creating this personal power.

"And a political machine has been built which places all free election in jeopardy. An economic system has been created which drifts steadily away from free men and free enterprise down the suicide road of national socialism. Under the assumptions of personal power we are steadily drifting toward war. And one result of the use of these powers has been to stifle the restoration of productive employment, a prosperous agriculture and to involve the peace of America."

Sweet Sue

by W. Smith-Sawyer

McClure Fiction

Illustrated by GREGOR DUNCAN

Bitt caught the rope not a second too soon. Slowly, painfully, Monty hauled them into his boat.

DARN it!" moaned Monty. "This thing eats up more gasoline than a Pan-American Clipper." To add to his troubles, the outboard motor attached to his dinghy had just coughed a couple of times and died. At the moment, Mr. Montgomery Reed and boat were being tossed idly about on the clear blue waters of Cape Redoldo Bay.

Temporarily forgetting the seathing speech he intended to deliver to the rich Mr. Andrew P. Suggett, Monty put the oars in the locks and began to pull for the landing—less than a quarter of a mile away.

As he approached the wharf lined with sleek-looking sailboats and cabin cruisers, he noticed a stubby, white-clad youth staring in his direction. "This wharf's private!" the fellow bawled at the top of his voice. "You can't tie up here."

Although he had heard the command and had seen the sign reading PRIVATE, Monty didn't stop rowing. Two minutes later he had reached the float adjacent to the dock. The young man above him was scowling. Monty eyed him coolly. Not a bad looking chap, he thought, but undoubtedly the spoiled offspring of some idle rich family. "I'm out of gas," Monty announced, stepping onto the float. "How about selling me a gallon?"

The other glowered. "I said this place is private. Now scram!"

"Oh, look here, fella," Monty countered, attempting to control his temper. "Didn't anyone ever tell you to love thy neighbor?"

"Neighbor! Nerts! You're the bird that's building those shacks over on the Point."

"Those shacks happen to be twenty of the niftiest summer cottages you ever saw," Monty snapped. "Tell me—do you know where I can find a dude named Andrew P. Suggett?"

"Don't know that it's any of your business. However, I'm handling my father's affairs in his absence."

"Then you're just the one I want to see," said Monty. "You must be young Bittner Suggett."

"That's right!"

"Listen," Monty continued hurriedly, "I have two truck loads of building material waiting to get through the gate on the upper road. How about unlocking it, quick like a mouse?"

Something of a sneer crossed young Suggett's plump face. "That gate has been open long enough. It's on our property and from now on it stays locked. If you want to get to the Point, use the lower road."

Now it was Monty's turn to glower. Parts of that road were too wet and soggy for the heavy trucks. It would be folly even to think of sending them over it. Monty Reed, his thick arms akimbo, the breeze ruffling his unruly blond hair, debated his next move. He was bare to the waist and his skin gleamed like burnished bronze in the morning sunlight. He wore sneakers and his faded corduroy trousers were splashed with paint and plaster.

"A hacksaw will unlock that gate in a hurry," he said crisply. He would have said more, but just then a lovely young creature came tripping down the bank. He had seen her picture in the papers often of late—Sue Van Arlen, widely acclaimed the most beautiful deb of the season. She was wearing a white halter sun suit that contrasted perfectly with her flowing black hair.

"Hurry up, Bitt," she called gayly. "Aunt Abigail has the lunch ready. We're all going clam digging—" Sue stopped short, staring wide-eyed at Monty as if suddenly electrified.

IN THAT fleeting instant a hundred things passed through his mind. This five feet two of radiant youth, health and beauty was good enough for anybody's Miss America. He studied her soft red lips, the cute little nose that turned slightly upward, and her big blue eyes that looked like china saucers. Monty recalled seeing her name linked with Bitt Suggett's and for some reason felt a sudden surge of jealousy. The expression on Sue's face seemed to say: "Hello there, Mister. Won't you come along, too?"

She was smiling, now—but briefly. Her long lashes lowered. Flushing, she turned to young Suggett: "Come on, Bitt. Right away."

Monty watched them go. "Sweet Sue!" he whistled under his breath. "Some guys have all the luck." He stood staring after them before returning to his boat.

Monty was in a pensive mood as he started rowing toward Muni Wharf, a mile down the beach. Since his attempt to build summer cottages on the Point, the Suggetts had done everything possible to hinder operations. First there was the rumpus about a building permit, then the legal action to deny him the use of the community water supply, followed by abatement proceeding to stop the work altogether on the grounds that his plan would develop into a public nuisance. And now, with his cottages nearly finished, the Suggetts had closed the upper road to prevent his getting materials to the job.

"It would be right up their alley to have me cut the chain on that gate," Monty told himself. "They'd have me in jail for trespassing before I could shake a stick. Nope! I've got a better idea."

An hour and a half later, cement, lumber and paint had been transferred from the trucks to a barge and a small Diesel towboat was crossing Cape Redoldo Bay with the load.

Monty reached the Point just ahead of the towboat. Bob Pearson, his lanky foreman, was waiting for him. The old fellow shook his head slowly as Monty tossed him a rope. "I was lookin' through the level a while ago," said Pearson, "and I seen you talking to that Suggett kid. I kinda thought he was givin' you trouble."

"Expensive trouble," Monty mused. "And my bank account is getting shorter than a second-hand cigar."

That evening being Saturday, Monty spent considerable time dressing. Fully thirty minutes were consumed in bathing, shaving and brushing his hair. And when he donned his dark trousers and white jacket, he looked fit to shame the Four Hundred.

"Ain't her perty?" grinned Bob Pearson, who shared one of the newly finished cottages with Monty.

"You go take a jump in the ocean!" Monty shot back. He barged out, banging the door, and climbed into his coupé which still looked rather classy, notwithstanding the three summers of abuse it had taken.

Usually Monty went to San Francisco on Saturday nights to dance with girl friends he could count on finding at the Rainbow Terrace. But not tonight. He made straight for the Redoldo Community Hall. If possible, he intended to find out just what Sue Van Arlen had meant by the look she had given him that morning.

"Ev'ry star above, knows the one I love, Sweet Sue—" he sang lustily as he breezed along the lower road.

When Monty entered the hall, the room was filled with the din of a blaring swing band, mingled with the shouts and laughter of gay young couples. Boxed palms had been placed along the walls and subdued orchid lights gave the effect of an exclusive night club.

DIRECTLY after he arrived, Monty saw Bittner Suggett with Sue on his arm coming toward him. "Wise guy!" young Suggett sang out boldly. "I see you're shipping by water, now."

Monty ignored him and smiled at Sue, marveling at her delicate, flawless complexion.

"Too bad," Suggett persisted, "your cottages, as you call them, won't be modern, isn't it?"

"What do you mean?" Monty demanded sharply. "They'll be ultra modern."

Bitt laughed. "That power line you've got strung through our property is only temporary. When you finish building those dumps it comes down. Better get your order in for some oil lamps—"

Monty took him by the lapels of his green twill sports coat. "See here," he snapped, "I'd rather not speak to you tonight. Meet me tomorrow when we can talk privately—as gentlemen."

Bitt shook him off. "Don't handle me that way! You won't feel so smart when you can't get a permanent right of way for a power line. Put that in your pipe and inhale it—Mr. Johnny-come-lately!"

Inwardly, Monty winced. The power line already had him worried, plenty. There was no room for it on the narrow lower road, and since the Suggetts owned most of the surrounding country, his electrical lines had to cross Suggett property.

Restraining his anger, Monty went over to a wicker lounge beside the band platform and sat down. Suddenly he was conscious of someone beside him. Whoever it was smelled fragrantly of gardenias. He turned.

"I'm terribly sorry about everything," Sue Van Arlen said in a serious tone. "Bitt was rude. He's gone home, now, angry."

Monty brightened. "What a break!" He couldn't help smiling at her. Sue was more entrancing than ever in a red evening jacket and flowing white skirt. He wanted to tell her so in the next breath. But all he did was ask her to dance.

After three successive dances which were quite wonderful, Sue remarked that she should be going home. Monty ushered her outside to his car.

Instead of turning up the hill at the post office, Monty swung to the right and headed down the incline toward the beach. A few minutes later he drew up at the "private" wharf.

"Why are you stopping?" Sue demanded. "I expected you to take me home."

Monty chuckled. "I didn't hear you say a word when I turned the wrong way in town. I want to know something, Sue," he went on. "Why do the Suggetts pay so much attention to me?"

"It isn't only the Suggetts," she said slowly. "The people of Cape Redoldo in general don't like you. Oh, I'm sorry," she was quick to add, "I mean they don't like what you are doing. You see, certain families have been summering here for years. They think of Cape Redoldo as their exclusive playground. Commercializing any part of it is almost sacrilege to them."

"I they think so much of it," Monty inquired, "why did they let the property on the Point go for back taxes?"

HE PAUSED, but failed to see her strange expression.

"That's how I got it," he said. "From the Beldon estate. Cape Redoldo is the most beautiful spot along this whole coast, and I don't see why the Suggetts or anyone else should want to deny a common, hard-working citizen the pleasure of its beauty. Just think! Twenty families will now be able to spend the summer here at a nominal cost. I'd like to show you the cottages some day when you have time."

"Thank you," Sue replied in her low, vibrant voice. "But I expect to be very busy. Father Suggett has given us a new sailboat and Bitt and I are both learning to handle it. Now, if you don't mind, I'd like to go home—to Aunt Abigail's."

"But I do mind," Monty smiled. "Can you look that moon in the face and honestly say you want to go home?"

Sue gave him a quick glance. Monty moved closer to her. "I guess you think I'm crazy," he said. "But you've completely gone to my head. When may I see you again, Sue?"

After a while: "I'm sorry, Monty. But, you see, that sailboat is sort of a wedding present in advance. Now, will you please take me home?"

During the next two weeks Monty tried to erase Sue from his mind. "I'm much too busy to be thinking about a gal that's practically married," he told himself firmly. But the thought of Sue marrying Bittner Suggett plagued him.

Monty stayed as close to the Point as possible to supervise the finishing touches. Even so, he saw Sue often—from a distance. Every day she and Bitt cruised near the Point in the sailboat the young man was continually struggling to master. Whenever they came close enough, Sue waved.

"If I couldn't handle a classy boat like that any better than Suggett," Monty said to his foreman on one occasion, "I'd quit. It's a shame it has to take all the abuse he gives it on the rocks."

"Yeah, I been noticin' it myself," said the foreman. "But," he chuckled, "I ain't so sure it's the boat you're worried about." He laughed heartily and Monty felt his face flush.

By the end of July the cottages were completed and ready for occupancy—except for the important and vital fact that they were in need of electrical service. On several occasions Monty had heated arguments with the power company officials. "We won't cross private property without a right of way," they told him. They suggested making room for the line on the lower road, but maintained that he would have to stand the expense of construction. And that, so far as Monty's bank account was concerned, was out of the question.

Many times he had tried to talk to Andrew P. Suggett, but the man refused to see him. Then he would try the power company again, pleading with them to condemn a strip through the Suggett property, but they argued that such proceedings were not according to law, besides being contrary to their policy.

All too soon, the month of August rolled around. Then September. Still the Point was without electricity.

One morning, in desperation, Monty drove to San Francisco to consult his attorney and was advised that he could do nothing through the courts. When he left, he felt as gloomy as the overcast sky looked. By the time he reached Mill Valley it had begun to rain. He drove northward up the Redwood Highway, his mind on his problems.

The rain thinned to a mist and finally stopped, only to be followed by a violent wind storm.

THE AFTERNOON was waning when he reached the Point. Bob Pearson, who had stayed on to help Monty with odd jobs, had an open fire burning cheerfully in their cottage.

"Some wind!" Monty threw his weight against the front door to close it.

"Sure is," said the other. "The old ocean is churning water higher than a house. And that fool kid is somewhere out there in his sailboat."

Monty looked at him sharply. "You mean young Suggett is out in this storm? Why, he can't even handle that boat in decent weather." He strode to the window. Then suddenly he was shouting. "Hell's bells! There he is! A couple of miles north of the Point. The sea is tossing him around like a cork. Get the level out. I want a close look."

Deftly, Monty adjusted the focusing screw on the instrument, then straightened. "Julius Caeser, Bob! Looks as if he's having trouble with his rudder. And Sue is out there with him!"

"More than likely was actin' smart and broke that rudder goin' over the reef in the wrong place. Better call the Coast Guard."

"No time for that," Monty snapped. "They'll be pounded to pieces on the rocks. Come on! We'll try to make it in the dinghy!"

"Not me. I ain't riskin' my life for that brat."

But Monty didn't wait to hear the man's protests. He was running with every ounce of strength he could muster—running in the direction of the wharf where the dinghy was tied.

His boat made little progress. But there was one consolation. The sea was carrying the sailboat nearer to him each minute. If he could only reach it before it was hurled upon the sharp, jutting rocks—

Suddenly, the dinghy was lifted to the crest of a wave. What Monty saw was registered in horror on his face. Sue and Bitt were still a quarter of a mile away. And the sailboat was over on its side. For an instant he caught a glimpse of Sue's lithe form clinging to the small taffrail. Bitt was struggling to unstep the mast. Then they went out of sight into a black hollow. A wave broke over the dinghy, shorting the motor.

It seemed hours before Monty started the motor again, and an eternity before he reached the sailboat. Time and again he attempted to bring the dinghy close enough to throw out a line. They were in the trough together, now—getting dangerously close to the rocks.

Then at last—success. Bitt caught the rope not a second too soon. Slowly, painfully, Monty hauled them into his boat. He swung the dinghy around just as it was scraping the reef and headed down the trough. Bitt was trembling, his face ghastly. But Sue, drenched from head to foot, shot Monty a smile of assurance.

When they reached the bottleneck the dinghy was carried into the bay on a sweeping roller. Monty saw Andrew P. Suggett on the deck of a forty-foot cruiser which was speeding toward them. A short time later Sue and Bitt were being helped aboard. Monty, exhausted, was left to shift for himself—with only a curt "thanks" from Suggett, Sr.

EIGHT o'clock that evening found Monty sitting alone in the glow of his wood fire. He had about made up his mind to drive to the village to inquire how Sue had reacted. But abruptly there came a knock at the door.

"Mental telepathy!" he exclaimed when he saw Sue standing on the stoop, dressed in a trim tailored suit and hat. "I was just thinking about you."

"I can only stay a minute," she announced, stepping inside. "Aunt Abigail is waiting for me in the car—to drive me home to Oakland."

Monty offered her a chair before the fireplace.

"I came to thank you," she said earnestly. "It was so brave of you to risk your life—"

"Skip it," Monty interrupted. "I simply saw that you needed help."

Sue leaned toward him, smiling. "I also have a surprise. Mr. Suggett wants to give you the right of way for your power line."

"You mean—"

"Yes. He wants to see you the first thing in the morning. He would have given it to you a long time ago if it hadn't been for the lies his son told him about you. Bittner Suggett is the meanest person in the world. I never want to see him again."

Monty let out a whoop that startled her.

"I hope—" Sue faltered "—the news makes you happy." She seemed on the verge of weeping.

Monty jumped to his feet. "But, see here! You're not going to cry about it?"

To his astonishment she rushed toward him and buried her face against his shoulder. The tears were coming shamelessly now. "Your cottages are lovely," she sobbed. "Mother had always planned to build a home here."

"Your mother?"

"Yes. Her name was Beldon before she married."

"You mean your mother owned the Point?" Monty demanded.

"The Point has belonged to the Beldons for years," Sue said. "But we were all so poor we couldn't even pay taxes on it. Oh, Monty! I'm not what you think I am. I'm going back home where I belong. My coming out was all Aunt Abigail's idea. She's the only one left in our family who has money and social position."

"That's wonderful!" Monty fairly shouted.

But Sue was running down the little graveled path toward the shiny sedan parked in the driveway. In a flash, Monty was after her. He caught her by the arm as she was opening the door of her aunt's car.

"Sue," he said gravely, "how about trading that sailboat for twenty ultra modern cottages?"

Sue started to enter the car, then paused. And all at once she was in his arms, both of them oblivious to the staccato clicking of Aunt Abigail's tongue.

Won't you come along, too?"

She was smiling, now—but briefly. Her long lashes lowered. Flushing, she turned to young Suggett: "Come on, Bitt. Right away."

Monty watched them go. "Sweet Sue!" he whistled under his breath. "Some guys have all the luck." He stood staring after them before returning to his boat.

Monty was in a pensive mood as he started rowing toward Muni Wharf, a mile down the beach. Since his attempt to build summer cottages on the Point, the Suggetts had done everything possible to hinder operations. First there was the rumpus about a building permit, then the legal action to deny him the use of the community water supply, followed by abatement proceeding to stop the work altogether on the grounds that his plan would develop into a public nuisance. And now, with his cottages nearly finished, the Suggetts had closed the upper road to prevent his getting materials to the job.

"It would be right up their alley to have me cut the chain on that gate," Monty told himself. "They'd have me in jail for trespassing before I could shake a stick. Nope! I've got a better idea."

An hour and a half later, cement, lumber and paint had been transferred from the trucks to a barge and a small Diesel towboat was crossing Cape Redoldo Bay with the load.

Monty reached the Point just ahead of the towboat. Bob Pearson, his lanky foreman, was waiting for him. The old fellow shook his head slowly as Monty tossed him a rope. "I was lookin' through the level a while ago," said Pearson, "and I seen you talking to that Suggett kid. I kinda thought he was givin' you trouble."

"Expensive trouble," Monty mused. "And my bank account is getting shorter than a second-hand cigar."

That evening being Saturday, Monty spent considerable time dressing. Fully thirty minutes were consumed in bathing, shaving and brushing his hair. And when he donned his dark trousers and white jacket, he looked fit to shame the Four Hundred.

"Ain't her party?" grinned Bob Pearson, who shared one of the newly finished cottages with Monty.

"You go take a jump in the ocean!" Monty shot back. He barged out, banging the door, and climbed into his coupé which still looked rather classy, notwithstanding the three summers of abuse it had taken.

Usually Monty went to San Francisco on Saturday nights to dance with girl friends he could count on finding at the Rainbow Terrace. But not tonight. He made straight for the Redoldo Community Hall. If possible, he intended to find out just what Sue Van Arlen had meant by the look she had given him that morning.

"Ev'ry star above, knows the one I love, Sweet Sue—" he sang lustily as he breezed along the lower road.

When Monty entered the hall, the room was filled with the din of a blaring swing band, mingled with the shouts and laughter of gay young couples. Boxed palms had been placed along the walls and subdued orchid lights gave the effect of an exclusive night club.

DIRECTLY after he arrived, Monty saw Bittner Suggett with Sue on his arm coming toward him. "Wise guy!" young Suggett sang out boldly. "I see you're shipping by water, now."

Monty ignored him and smiled at Sue, marveling at her delicate, flawless complexion.

"Too bad," Suggett persisted, "your cottages, as you call them, won't be modern, isn't it?"

"What do you mean?" Monty demanded sharply. "They'll be ultra modern."

Bitt laughed. "That power line you've got strung through our property is only temporary. When you finish building those dumps it comes down. Better get your order in for some oil lamps—"

Monty took him by the lapels of his green twill sports coat. "See here," he snapped, "I'd rather not speak to you tonight. Meet me tomorrow when we can talk privately—as gentlemen."

Bitt shook him off. "Don't handle me that way! You won't feel so smart when you can't get a permanent right of way for a power line. Put that in your pipe and inhale it—Mr. Johnny-come-lately!"

Inwardly, Monty winced. The power line already had him worried, plenty. There was no room for it on the narrow lower road, and since the Suggetts owned most of the surrounding country, his electrical lines had to cross Suggett property.

Restraining his anger, Monty went over to a wicker lounge beside the band platform and sat down. Suddenly he was conscious of someone beside him. Whoever it was smelled fragrantly of gardenias. He turned.

"I'm terribly sorry about everything," Sue Van Arlen said in a serious tone. "Bitt was rude. He's gone home, now, angry."

Monty brightened. "What a break!" He couldn't help smiling at her. Sue was more entrancing than ever in a red evening jacket and flowing white skirt. He wanted to tell her so in the next breath. But all he did was ask her to dance.

After three successive dances which were quite wonderful, Sue remarked that she should be going home. Monty ushered her outside to his car.

Instead of turning up the hill at the post office, Monty swung to the right and headed down the incline toward the beach. A few minutes later he drew up at the "private" wharf.

"Why are you stopping?" Sue demanded. "I expected you to take me home."

Monty chuckled. "I didn't hear you say a word when I turned the wrong way in town. I want to know something, Sue," he went on. "Why do the Suggetts pay so much attention to me?"

"It isn't only the Suggetts," she said slowly. "The people of Cape Redoldo in general don't like you. Oh, I'm sorry," she was quick to add, "I mean they don't like what you are doing. You see, certain families have been summering here for years. They think of Cape Redoldo as their exclusive playground. Commercializing any part of it is almost sacrilege to them."

"If they think so much of it," Monty inquired, "why did they let the property on the Point go for back taxes?"

HE PAUSED, but failed to see her strange expression.

"That's how I got it," he said. "From the Beldon estate. Cape Redoldo is the most beautiful spot along this whole coast, and I don't see why the Suggetts or anyone else should want to deny a common, hard-working citizen the pleasure of its beauty. Just think! Twenty families will now be able to spend the summer here at a nominal cost. I'd like to show you the cottages some day when you have time."

"Thank you," Sue replied in her low, vibrant voice. "But I expect to be very busy. Father Suggett has given us a new sailboat and Bitt and I are both learning to handle it. Now, if you don't mind, I'd like to go home—to Aunt Abigail's."

"But I do mind," Monty smiled. "Can you look that moon in the face and honestly say you want to go home?"

Sue gave him a quick glance. Monty moved closer to her. "I guess you think I'm crazy," he said. "But you've completely gone to my head. When may I see you again, Sue?"

After a while: "I'm sorry, Monty. But, you see, that sailboat is sort of a wedding present in advance. Now, will you please take me home?"

During the next two weeks Monty tried to erase Sue from his mind. "I'm much too busy to be thinking about a gal that's practically married," he told himself firmly. But the thought of Sue marrying Bittner Suggett plagued him.

Monty stayed as close to the Point as possible to supervise the finishing touches. Even so, he saw Sue often—from a distance. Every day she and Bitt cruised near the Point in the sailboat the young man was continually struggling to master. Whenever they came close enough, Sue waved.

"If I couldn't handle a classy boat like that any better than Suggett," Monty said to his foreman on one occasion, "I'd quit. It's a shame it has to take all the abuse he gives it on the rocks."

"Yeah, I been noticin' it myself," said the foreman. "But," he chuckled, "I ain't so sure it's the boat you're worried about." He laughed heartily and Monty felt his face flush.

By the end of July the cottages were completed and ready for occupancy—except for the important and vital fact that they were in need of electrical service. On several occasions Monty had heated arguments with the power company officials. "We won't cross private property without a right of way," they told him. They suggested making room for the line on the lower road, but maintained that he would have to stand the expense of construction. And that, so far as Monty's bank account was concerned, was out of the question.

Many times he had tried to talk to Andrew P. Suggett, but the man refused to see him. Then he would try the power company again, pleading with them to condemn a strip through the Suggett property, but they argued that such proceedings were not according to law, besides being contrary to their policy.

All too soon, the month of August rolled around. Then September. Still the Point was without electricity.

One morning, in desperation, Monty drove to San Francisco to consult his attorney and was advised that he could do nothing through the courts. When he left, he felt as gloomy as the overcast sky looked. By the time he reached Mill Valley it had begun to rain. He drove northward up the Redwood Highway, his mind on his problems.

The rain thinned to a mist and finally stopped, only to be followed by a violent wind storm.

THE AFTERNOON was waning when he reached the Point. Bob Pearson, who had stayed on to help Monty with odd jobs, had an open fire burning cheerfully in their cottage.

"Some wind!" Monty threw his weight against the front door to close it.

"Sure is," said the other. "The old ocean is churning water higher than a house. And that fool kid is somewhere out there in his sailboat."

Monty looked at him sharply. "You mean young Suggett is out in this storm? Why, he can't even handle that boat in decent weather." He strode to the window. Then suddenly he was shouting. "Hell's bells! There he is! A couple of miles north of the Point. The sea is tossing him around like a cork. Get the level out. I want a close look."

Deftly, Monty adjusted the focusing screw on the instrument, then straightened. "Julius Caeser, Bob! Looks as if he's having trouble with his rudder. And Sue is out there with him!"

"More than likely was actin' smart and broke that rudder goin' over the reef in the wrong place. Better call the Coast Guard."

"No time for that," Monty snapped. "They'll be pounded to pieces on the rocks. Come on! We'll try to make it in the dinghy!"

"Not me. I ain't riskin' my life for that brat."

But Monty didn't wait to hear the man's protests. He was running with every ounce of strength he could muster—running in the direction of the wharf where the dinghy was tied.

His boat made little progress. But there was one consolation. The sea was carrying the sailboat nearer to him each minute. If he could only reach it before it was hurled upon the sharp, jutting rocks—

Suddenly, the dinghy was lifted to the crest of a wave. What Monty saw was registered in horror on his face. Sue and Bitt were still a quarter of a mile away. And the sailboat was over on its side. For an instant he caught a glimpse of Sue's lithe form clinging to the small taffrail. Bitt was struggling to unstep the mast. Then they went out of sight into a black hollow. A wave broke over the dinghy, shorting the motor.

It seemed hours before Monty started the motor again, and an eternity before he reached the sailboat. Time and again he attempted to bring the dinghy close enough to throw out a line. They were in the trough together, now—getting dangerously close to the rocks.

Then at last—success. Bitt caught the rope not a second too soon. Slowly, painfully, Monty hauled them into his boat. He swung the dinghy around just as it was scraping the reef and headed down the trough. Bitt was trembling, his face ghastly. But Sue, drenched from head to foot, shot Monty a smile of assurance.

When they reached the bottleneck the dinghy was carried into the bay on a sweeping roller. Monty saw Andrew P. Suggett on the deck of a forty-foot cruiser which was speeding toward them. A short time later Sue and Bitt were being helped aboard. Monty, exhausted, was left to shift for himself—with only a curt "thanks" from Suggett, Sr.

EIGHT o'clock that evening found Monty sitting alone in the glow of his wood fire. He had about made up his mind to drive to the village to inquire how Sue had reacted. But abruptly there came a knock at the door.

"Mental telepathy!" he exclaimed when he saw Sue standing on the stoop, dressed in a trim tailored suit and hat. "I was just thinking about you."

"I can only stay a minute," she announced, stepping inside. "Aunt Abigail is waiting for me in the car—to drive me home to Oakland."

Monty offered her a chair before the fireplace.

"I came to thank you," she said earnestly. "It was so brave of you to risk your life—"

"Skip it," Monty interrupted. "I simply saw that you needed help."

Sue leaned toward him, smiling. "I also have a surprise. Mr. Suggett wants to give you the right of way for your power line."

"You mean—"

"Yes. He wants to see you the first thing in the morning. He would have given it to you a long time ago if it hadn't been for the lies his son told him about you. Bittner Suggett is the meanest person in the world. I never want to see him again."

Monty let out a whoop that startled her.

"I hope—" Sue faltered "—the news makes you happy." She seemed on the verge of weeping.

Monty jumped to his feet. "But, see here! You're not going to cry about it?"

To his astonishment she rushed toward him and buried her face against his shoulder. The tears were coming shamelessly now. "Your cottages are lovely," she sobbed. "Mother had always planned to build a home here."

"Your mother?"

"Yes. Her name was Beldon before she married."

"You mean your mother owned the Point?" Monty demanded.

"The Point has belonged to the Beldons for years," Sue said. "But we were all so poor we couldn't even pay taxes on it. Oh, Monty! I'm not what you think I am. I'm going back home where I belong. My coming out was all Aunt Abigail's idea. She's the only one left in our family who has money and social position."

"That's wonderful!" Monty fairly shouted.

But Sue was running down the little graveled path toward the shiny sedan parked in the driveway. In a flash, Monty was after her. He caught her by the arm as she was opening the door of her aunt's car.

"Sue," he said gravely, "how about trading that sailboat for twenty ultra modern cottages?"

Sue started to enter the car, then paused. And all at once she was in his arms, both of them oblivious to the staccato clicking of Aunt Abigail's tongue.

Victory Sought As Chest Plans Wind-Up Report

Final Workers' Luncheon Next Tuesday; Women Rally Today

Community Chest solicitors plan a third and final report luncheon in First Methodist church Tuesday, October 29, at 12:15 p. m.

Leaders anticipate that that day will see all or most of the 1940 drive goal of $60,500 subscribed. More than $36,178 (formally reported last Tuesday noon) had been pledged today.

Women's division workers this afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. will attend a second "report tea," something new in local Chest campaigns. It will commence at 4.

Campaign Chairman Paul G. Dingledy indicated the ladies' reports will show "several splendid contributions," and that the women's teams over the week-end will continue their splendid prospect coverage.

Plans for the final general report next week developed out of yesterday's luncheon conference of all the division chairmen.

Dingledy told his "campaign cabinet" that, to date, most of the contributions of industries have "shown a substantial increase over last year." He said rural territory solicitation is progressing under the direction of J. Audley Boak and Fred L. Taylor and that later that division's report would be made public.

Attending yesterday's conference with Dingledy were Alec Samuels, Community Chest president; LeRoy Donaldson, assistant drive chairman, and Division Chairmen, Joel S. McKee, James B. Foster, Virdyn R. Caldwell, William S. Emley, Mrs. Marjorie Rhodes Nelson and Ray F. McAuley, representing Division Chairman J. W. Staudinger.

Mrs. William J. Caldwell will preside at the women's session today.

Jr. C. Of C. Plans Stag Dinner Party

Junior Chamber of Commerce members will hold a stag dinner party in the clubhouse of Sylvan Heights golf course Tuesday, October 29, at 6:30 p. m., it was announced today. Membership notices said the dinner is free to members.

Republicans can't complain if Negroes vote for the New Deal. Look how long they showed their gratitude for that other relief.

An informal social time was enjoyed, with costume prizes being awarded to Teresa Mangieri, Jennie Latess, Dorothy DeCarbo and Frances Corio. The door trophy was captured by Dorothy DeCarbo.

Games and other forms of entertainment were featured, with Eva Malley, Jennie DeCarbo and Lucy Fire in charge. Prizes for games were awarded to Netta Camilla, Laura Isabelle, Minnie Antonio and Esther Pia. Vocal selections were rendered by Mary Pia.

Special guests present on this occasion included: Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, Rev. Fr. Joseph L. Abbate, Mother Superior, Sister Hildegarde, Sister Florence and Jessie Vendemia, the latter of Aliquippa.

Dainty refreshments were served at a later hour, with appropriate favors marking places. Serving were: Lena Mastrangelo, and her aides, Mary Chill, Minnie Antionio, Julia Terranova, Betty Terranova, Laura Cugini, Yolanda Carney.

The success of the event is due to the untiring work of the chairman, Lena Mastrangelo. On November 12, the group will meet, at which time plans will be made for a charity card party.

News Briefs From City Hall

"We are experiencing considerable difficulty with persons who drive pleasure cars for commercial purposes. They believe they have a right to park free at meters. They are wrong" warned Police Chief W. G. McMullen today, who added that such persons face arrest for not carrying a commercial license on their cars.

Five "Door-way Johnnies" who made boisterous noise at East Washington and Mercer streets at 1:25 a. m. today spent the night in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct. Mayor Charles B. Mayne discharged them this morning. He lectured the boys and told them that such noise disturbs several hundred sleepers in the Mercer-East Washington street district.

It is contrary to motor vehicle law to place any card or sign on the windshield, side-windows or rear-window of an auto, according to both State Motor and city police. Many autoists are not adhering to the law, according to police authorities. "If one wants a sign or card on a car it should be placed on the body of the vehicle," Police Chief W. G. McMullen warned today.

Joe Ludwick, 1008 North Ashland avenue, reported to police that his car was parked Thursday in North Liberty street and it was struck by an auto driven by a Mr. Stroud of R. D. 1. The drivers settled their own difficulties, Ludwick reported.

Regarding auto accidents, police do not answer calls to settle the problem of who was responsible for an accident. They travel to the scene to help accident victims and keep traffic moving and also to obtain for police files, facts concerning the accidents.

The "No Tootin'" order will be in effect tonight, prior to and following the grid tilt, was the statement of Police Chief W. G. McMullen, concerning auto travel. "No doubt traffic will be heavy. An auto horn does not direct nor help traffic. It aids only in time of danger. Fans should use it as a danger signal," he stated.

Can Publish Draft Drawing

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A brief statement assuring radio stations and newspapers that the impending draft drawing is not a lottery and may be publicly announced by all information distributing agencies was issued today by the justice department.

Setting at rest any existing ears that it would be illegal to announce results of the draft, because of the provisions of the federal anti-lottery law, the justice department statement declared:

"The drawing for selective service obviously does not constitute a lottery within the meaning of the anti-lottery statute. It does not in any way involve the payment of a consideration in the hope of obtaining a monetary or property gain."

Oil Men Select Speck, Chairman

William Misom was named chairman of the legislative committee and James Hinish vice chairman C. B. Sproul was named chairman of the public relations committee and W O. Kerr and William Gillespie vice chairmen. E. C. Wadding was named chairman of the local affairs committee and Clyde Hill and J Edgar Ellis as vice chairmen.

Police Must Tag All Meter Violators

Severe Punishment Promised For Failure To Enforce Ordinance

"If I had happened along and discovered a policeman had not put a ticket for volation of the parking meter ordinance on your car, I would have suspended the policeman for 30 days" said Mayor Chas. B. Mayne today to a motorist who appeared in traffic court in city hall.

The motorist told His Honor that she had gone into a pharmacy to get a prescription and the policeman had put a tag on the car. The mayor replied the officer had done the right thing but under the circumstances excused payment.

During the past several days Police Chief Willis G. McMullen also has impressed upon erring motorists that police are hired to perform police duties regardless of fear or favor and failure to tag cars not legally parked, will result in punishment.

About a week ago the chief assigned a policeman to do special parking meter duty. It is his duty to travel around the meter system and place tags on cars which have escaped the eyes of policemen on the various patrols.

Already this month approximately 100 persons have paid fines for violating the parking ordinance.

He was given a suspended sentence of one and one-half years by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker and placed on probation for two years. Flora was also ordered to make restitution within six months.

Federal agents said the checks had been taken from various mail boxes.

Victory Sought As Chest Plans Wind-Up Report

Final Workers' Luncheon Next Tuesday; Women Rally Today

Community Chest solicitors plan a third and final report luncheon in First Methodist church Tuesday, October 29, at 12:15 p. m.

Leaders anticipate that that day will see all or most of the 1940 drive goal of $60,500 subscribed. More than $36,178 (formally reported last Tuesday noon) had been pledged today.

Women's division workers this afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. will attend a second "report tea," something new in local Chest campaigns. It will commence at 4.

Campaign Chairman Paul G. Dingledy indicated the ladies' reports will show "several splendid contributions," and that the women's teams over the week-end will continue their splendid prospect coverage.

Plans for the final general report next week developed out of yesterday's luncheon conference of all the division chairmen.

Dingledy told his "campaign cabinet" that, to date, most of the contributions of industries have "shown a substantial increase over last year." He said rural territory solicitation is progressing under the direction of J. Audley Boak and Fred L. Taylor and that later that division's report would be made public.

Attending yesterday's conference with Dingledy were Alec Samuels, Community Chest president; LeRoy Donaldson, assistant drive chairman, and Division Chairmen, Joel S. McKee, James B. Foster, Virdyn R. Caldwell, William S. Emley, Mrs. Marjorie Rhodes Nelson and Ray F. McAuley, representing Division Chairman J. W. Staudinger.

Mrs. William J. Caldwell will preside at the women's session today.

Jr. C. Of C. Plans Stag Dinner Party

Junior Chamber of Commerce members will hold a stag dinner party in the clubhouse of Sylvan Heights golf course Tuesday, October 29, at 6:30 p. m., it was announced today. Membership notices said the dinner is free to members.

St. Vitus Group Hallowe'en Party

Masquerade Event Is Enjoyed By Young Ladies Sodality Thursday Evening

Members of Our Lady's Sodality of St. Vitus church, gathered Thursday evening for their masquerade party, in the convent. The party was held in conjunction with the Our Lady Sodality branch of Croton.

An informal social time was enjoyed, with costume prizes being awarded to Teresa Mangieri, Jennie Latess, Dorothy DeCarbo and Frances Corio. The door trophy was captured by Dorothy DeCarbo.

Games and other forms of entertainment were featured, with Eva Malley, Jennie DeCarbo and Lucy Fire in charge. Prizes for games were awarded to Netta Camilla, Laura Isabelle, Minnie Antonio and Esther Pia. Vocal selections were rendered by Mary Pia.

Special guests present on this occasion included: Rev. Fr. Nicholas DeMita, Rev. Fr. Joseph L. Abbate, Mother Superior, Sister Hildegarde, Sister Florence and Jessie Vendemia, the latter of Aliquippa.

Dainty refreshments were served at a later hour, with appropriate favors marking places. Serving were: Lena Mastrangelo, and her aides, Mary Chill, Minnie Antonio, Julia Terranova, Betty Terranova, Laura Cugini, Yolanda Carney.

The success of the event is due to the untiring work of the chairman, Lena Mastrangelo. On November 12, the group will meet, at which time plans will be made for a charity card party.

News Briefs From City Hall

"We are experiencing considerable difficulty with persons who drive pleasure cars for commercial purposes. They believe they have a right to park free at meters. They are wrong" warned Police Chief W. G. McMullen today, who added that such persons face arrest for not carrying a commercial license on their cars.

Five "Door-way Johnnies" who made boisterous noise at East Washington and Mercer streets at 1:25 a. m. today spent the night in jail on a charge of disorderly conduct. Mayor Charles B. Mayne discharged them this morning. He lectured the boys and told them that such noise disturbs several hundred sleepers in the Mercer-East Washington street district.

It is contrary to motor vehicle law to place any card or sign on the windshield, side-windows or rear-window of an auto, according to both State Motor and city police. Many autoists are not adhering to the law, according to police authorities. "If one wants a sign or card on a car it should be placed on the body of the vehicle," Police Chief W. G. McMullen warned today.

Joe Ludwick, 1008 North Ashland avenue, reported to police that his car was parked Thursday in North Liberty street and it was struck by an auto driven by a Mr. Stroud of R. D. 1. The drivers settled their own difficulties, Ludwick reported.

Regarding auto accidents, police do not answer calls to settle the problem of who was responsible for an accident. They travel to the scene to help accident victims and keep traffic moving and also to obtain for police files, facts concerning the accidents.

The "No Tootin'" order will be in effect tonight, prior to and following the grid tilt, was the statement of Police Chief W. G. McMullen, concerning auto travel. "No doubt traffic will be heavy. An auto horn does not direct nor help traffic. It aids only in time of danger. Fans should use it as a danger signal," he stated.

Can Publish Draft Drawing

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—A brief statement assuring radio stations and newspapers that the impending draft drawing is not a lottery and may be publicly announced by all information distributing agencies was issued today by the justice department.

Setting at rest any existing fears that it would be illegal to announce results of the draft, because of the provisions of the federal anti-lottery law, the justice department statement declared:

"The drawing for selective service obviously does not constitute a lottery within the meaning of the anti-lottery statute. It does not in any way involve the payment of a consideration in the hope of obtaining a monetary or property gain."

Oil Men Select Speck, Chairman

At a meeting of the Lawrence County division of the Associated Petroleum Industries of Pennsylvania held in the Castleton Hotel Thursday afternoon, Theodore Speck was named chairman for the coming year. Joseph Hoyle was named vice chairman and William C. Schmit secretary.

William Misom was named chairman of the legislative committee and James Hinish vice chairman. C. B. Sproul was named chairman of the public relations committee and W. O. Kerr and William Gillespie vice chairmen. E. C. Wadding was named chairman of the local affairs committee and Clyde Hill and J. Edgar Ellis as vice chairmen.

Police Must Tag All Meter Violators

Severe Punishment Promised For Failure To Enforce Ordinance

"If I had happened along and discovered a policeman had not put a ticket for volation of the parking meter ordinance on your car, I would have suspended the policeman for 30 days" said Mayor Chas. B. Mayne today to a motorist who appeared in traffic court in city hall.

The motorist told His Honor that she had gone into a pharmacy to get a prescription and the policeman had put a tag on the car. The mayor replied the officer had done the right thing but under the circumstances excused payment.

During the past several days Police Chief Willis G. McMullen also has impressed upon erring motorists that police are hired to perform police duties regardless of fear or favor and failure to tag cars not legally parked, will result in punishment.

About a week ago the chief assigned a policeman to do special parking meter duty. It is his duty to travel around the meter system and place tags on cars which have escaped the eyes of policemen on the various patrols.

Already this month approximately 100 persons have paid fines for violating the parking ordinance.

Sentence Suspended On New Castle Man

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—Louis Flora, 52, of New Castle, employed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for 28 years, today pleaded guilty to forging and passing five WPA checks totaling $150.

He was given a suspended sentence of one and one-half years by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker and placed on probation for two years. Flora was also ordered to make restitution within six months.

Federal agents said the checks had been taken from various mail boxes.

WILLKIE SPEAKS WHERE ROOSEVELT WAS NOMINATED

Before a crowd of 33,000 Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, climaxes his second midwestern tour by a speech in the Chicago stadium, the hall in which President Roosevelt was nominated by the Democrats for a third term last summer.

The radio keeps telling the Germans they are winning, but Alas! the proof of the victory is in the eating.

You haven't dodged other issues, Mr. Willkie, but do you favor the Pilgrim or the Roosevelt Thanksgiving?

Note to Japan: You can't be violently anti-white man and still expect white men to quit being anti-Japanese.

WILLKIE SPEAKS WHERE ROOSEVELT WAS NOMINATED

Before a crowd of 33,000 Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential candidate, climaxes his second mid-western tour by a speech in the Chicago stadium, the hall in which President Roosevelt was nominated by the Democrats for a third term last summer.

The radio keeps telling the Germans they are winning, but Alas! the proof of the victory is in the eating.

You haven't dodged other issues, Mr. Willkie, but do you favor the Pilgrim or the Roosevelt Thanksgiving?

Willkie Heard By Large Crowd

Mercer County Greets G. O. P. Candidate At Sharon Thursday

SPECIAL PLATFORM FOR CEREMONIES

Duplicating the immense throng that turned out in New Castle several weeks ago, Sharon and Mercer county turned out for Wendell L. Willkie Thursday afternoon when the Republican candidate visited the Shenango Valley. It was difficult to estimate the crowd because of the necessity of putting it in several different spots but estimates ran between 12,000 and 15,000.

Mr. Willkie came to Sharon from Erie and because of the press of the crowd in Erie his special train was late. Scheduled to arrive in Sharon at 3:15 it did not arrive until four o'clock. A special platform had been erected on the Pennsylvania railroad platform and Mr. and Mrs. Willkie were taken from the train to the platform.

Senator Davis Introduces

"I am happy to be back in my old home town today and introduce to my friends the man who scared the Third Term Candidate out of hiding to defend himself" said Senator Davis. "As a young man in Elwood, Indiana, I was active in labor union work. The first case we ever took into court Wendell Willkie's father defended the union."

Opening in a light tone Mr. Willkie said "there is this much to say about Elwood over Sharon. When Jim Davis came to our town we were quick to recognize his ability and elect him city clerk. I am happy to be here today among his friends in Mercer county."

"I believe in the free way of America, I believe in free expression. Whenever free expression goes, free government goes. In this campaign I have felt it my duty to play my part in acquainting the American people with the conditions that face them in this election. Then it is up to them to decide what way of living they want.

"There is no question in this campaign of collective bargaining of social security or of minimum hours. Neither is there any question about relief except that I favor giving relief until we get every man a job. Those issues are decided.

National Bankruptcy

"Every year since the New Deal has been in power it has spent more than it took in. This leads eventually to bankruptcy. When ever a nation goes into bankruptcy, whenever inflation comes, then the gains of labor are lost and liberty is sometimes lost along with it." Finishing his short address Mr. Willkie said, "only the productive can be strong. Only the strong can be free."

Frank Fair, county chairman of Mercer county was in charge of the party as it arrived in Sharon and Mr. Fair introduced Senator James J. Davis. On the platform with him husband was Mrs. Willkie and before the speaking began she was presented with a handsome bouquet of red roses.

Many New Castle people were in the huge throng. It is difficult to estimate how many but it seems safe to say that scores went from this city and county. A number of cars from Butler county were present also. Mr. Willkie's special train left Sharon for Warren, O., where he was booked for a short stop prior to going to Akron, O., for a night meeting.

"I am happy to be back in my old home town today and introduce to my friends the man who scared the Third Term Candidate out of hiding to defend himself", said Senator Davis. "As a young man in Elwood, Indiana, I was active in labor union work. The first case we ever took into court Wendell Willkie's father defended the union."

Opening in a light tone Mr. Willkie said "there is this much to say about Elwood over Sharon. When Jim Davis came to our town we were quick to recognize his ability and elect him city clerk. I am happy to be here today among his friends in Mercer county."

"I believe in the free way of America, I believe in free expression. Wherever free expression goes, free government goes. In this campaign I have felt it my duty to play my part in acquainting the American people with the conditions that face them in this election. Then it is up to them to decide what way of living they want.

"There is no question in this campaign of collective bargaining of social security or of minimum hours. Neither is there any question about relief except that I favor giving relief until we get every man a job. Those issues are decided.

National Bankruptcy

"Every year since the New Deal has been in power it has spent more than it took in. This leads eventually to bankruptcy. When ever a nation goes into bankruptcy, whenever inflation comes, then the gains of labor are lost and liberty is sometimes lost along with it." Finishing his short address Mr. Willkie said, "only the productive can be strong. Only the strong can be free."

Frank Fair, county chairman of Mercer county was in charge of the party as it arrived in Sharon and Mr. Fair introduced Senator James J. Davis. On the platform with his husband was Mrs. Willkie and before the speaking began she was presented with a handsome bouquet of red roses.

Many New Castle people were in the huge throng. It is difficult to estimate how many but it seems safe to say that scores went from this city and county. A number of cars from Butler county were present also. Mr. Willkie's special train left Sharon for Warren, O., where he was booked for a short stop prior to going to Akron, O., for a night meeting.

British Destroyer Is Reported Sunk

(International News Service)

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Sinking of the 1090-ton British destroyer Venetia by an enemy mine was announced today, but the admiralty claimed two naval victories to offset the loss.

The British submarine Regent destroyed an Italian supply ship in the Mediterranean, and the submarine Swordfish sank a German torpedo boat off the French coast, the admiralty said.

The destroyer Venetia carried a normal crew of 134.

EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETING

Lawrence county executive board members gathered in the Y. W. C. A. Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. W. G. Wilkins, president, in charge. Mrs. Jennie Wilson had charge of the religious program.

Mrs. Marian G. Cole, Princeton, was appointed as director of the medal contests. Hold Fast certificates were given to the New Wilmington, Harlansburg, Ellwood City and Wayne unions. A check for five dollars was presented to the Scotland union for attaining the Standard of Excellence.

It was announced that the county unions had won two ribbons. Bishop Hughes will speak Tuesday, October 29, in the First Methodist church and plans were formed for the various unions to attend. A committee was appointed to arrange for the Loyalty luncheon. Reports of the recent state convention were given by Mrs. Harriet Coates.

YOUTHS BETWEEN 16 AND 21 STEAL THE MOST AUTOS

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA — Youths between 10 and 21 commit more automobile thefts and holdups than any other age group, according to Dr. Thorsten Sellin, University of Pennsylvania criminologist.

In a report submitted to the American Law Institute, Dr. Sellin found that young men double their expected quota in robberies and nearly quadruple it in automobile thefts. This proportion is high in larceny, receivership of stolen goods and carrying dangerous weapons, Dr. Sellin reported.

"When we consider that the youth contingent of the population of the United States over 15 comprises only slightly more than 13 per cent of the population, these figures reflect a situation worthy of the deepest concern," the criminologist commented.

James To Head Navy Day Plans

Annual Observance Of Navy Day Will Occur On Sunday Throughout Nation

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25.—Governor James was notified by Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the fourth naval district, Navy Yard, Philadelphia, that the governor had been named chairman of the celebration on the observance of Navy Day in Pennsylvania. The designation was made by the president of the Navy League of the United States.

In connection with Navy Day, Governor James said:

"The commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which has been for generations a keystone of national defense, has always taken a most active part in the activities of Navy Day, to be celebrated this year on Sunday, Oct. 27.

"For the second consecutive year Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the fourth naval district, Philadelphia, has found it necessary to advise me that it will be necessary to keep the navy yard closed on Navy Day."

Farmers Urged To Seek Loans Early

Farm Security Administration Supervisor Taking Applications In Advance

Like doing one's Christmas shopping early, there is good reason why farm families expecting to call upon the Farm Security Administration for operating credit should do so at this time of the year. This was explained by Clair E. George, farm security administration supervisor in Beaver Falls, Pa. He advises farmers to "think ahead" about their credit needs, instead of waiting until they get down to their last bushel of feed.

Mr. George pointed out that a farmer applying now for an advance which he will not need for several months may have it withheld for future delivery on a specified date. Thus, the loan does not begin to bear interest until it is actually used.

Farm Security Administration loans are made to farm operators, whether owners or tenants, who are unable to obtian credit on reasonable terms from other sources. The loans can be made for feed, seed, fertilizer, livestock, equipment and similar operating goods for periods of from one to five years, with interest at five per cent. Mr. George certifies all requests of farmers in Allegheny, Beaver, and Lawrence counties. Mr. George offices address is Post Office building, Beaver Falls, Penna.

BLIND BOY SCOUT COMMISSIONER WINS TOP HONOR

(International News Service)

SALEM, O.—Eddie Howell, 48, of Salem, only blind Boy Scout commissioner in the United States, has been awarded the Silver Beaver Medal, highest honor that can be given to a Scout leader.

Howell was appointed Scout commissioner six years ago, and in that time he has built scouting in Salem to a level never attained before. Membership has more than doubled, there have been many advancements in the activities of the Scouts, and scores of boys too young to belong to the regular Scouts have formed club packs.

Actual participation in scouting and Howell's natural fondness for boys have done much in making his work a success and the boys like and trust Eddie.

His blindness has been almost no handicap. He makes his way about the 112-acre McKinley reservation without aid, takes part in many of the handcraft activities, and swims and dives as well as any of his charges who can see.

NEW CASTLE AND CLEVELAND PLAY HERE TONIGHT

Night Battle At Taggart Stadium

New Castle High Seeks Seventh Win Of Year; First Time Any Cleveland Team Has Played In New Castle; Parou Out Of Starting Lineup; Visitors Will Have Big Advantage In Weight; Kickoff Slated For 8 O'Clock.

JOHN ADAMS High of Cleveland with a football team of young giants will make its first appearance here this evening at Taggart stadium, meeting the "Red Hurricanes" of New Castle High. The kickoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The game tonight marks the first time in the history of New Castle football that a Cleveland team has appeared on the card. Last year John Adams won the Cleveland city championshpip. They lost some men by graduation, but had enough good reserves from last year to build a strong team this year. Adams has won four and lost two so far this year.

Big Weight Advantage

The invaders from Ohio will have a big advantage in weight over the "Canes" with a line that averages 186 and a 161 backfield. The New Castle line averages 170 and 152 in the backfield. Roger Lazarro, the Adams High left tackle, tips the scales at 235, and Kinkopf, the right tackle, goes 190 or better.

New Castle's tackles, Joe Audino and Scarazzo, weigh 183 and 178 respectively. Barry, the center, will have close to 20 pounds on New Castle's own center, Warren "Russ" Morgan. The lightest man on the Cleveland squad is Bobby Lazzaro, brother of the big tackle, who goes just 150 pounds, and is co-captain along with Fullback Steve Jadlowsky.

Aerial Battle Likely

Indications in practice this week lead one to believe that New Castle is readying an aerial circus for the benefit of the John Adams High eleven. Robert E. "General" Lee has spent many hours this week in brushing up on his passes.

This year especially New Castle has a fine record in the forward passing end of the game. Pass defense has been stressed considerably the past week.

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh announced that Parou would not start at right end tonight, but that he would select either Tomalello or Pugh for the terminal job. Parou was injured in the Washington game. Ciazza has a bruised shoulder but will be in there at the start of the game, it was indicated.

Referee John Chapman inadvertently got between the runner and a tackler during a semi-pro football game. The tackler missed the ball-carrier, but not Chapman, whose leg was broken in three places by the impact.

Frank Regan of Penn, after practice, continues to carry a football around in his hands, putting it down only long enough to take a shower and dress. "Just a little homework to prevent fumbling," he explains.

Millions of young people throughout the United States play basketball today, but Dr. James Naismith, the man who invented it, never played a game of it in his life.

Moran's Hands In Good Shape

Hopes To "Kayo" Carter Prove Some Opinions Are Wrong

KOWALIK TO BOX SLIPPERY ROCK BOY

Apparently in the pink of condition for his bout Monday night with Grover Carter of Aliquippa in The Arena, Frankie Moran will cut out boxing after Saturday, he stated today.

Moran's hands are in good condition and he believes that the assault he will wage several nights hence will be so aggressive that Carter who scored a TKO over him at Ellwood City, will be unable to keep pace with him.

"After I was defeated at Ellwood City", said Moran today "Many fans believed I had passed my peak and that in future bouts I would fall prey to opponents. I'm going to fool these boys" he asserted.

He goes on the road for a several miles run every morning and at night not only boxes with training partners, but wrestles, skips rope, punches big and small bags and tugs at the weights to reach the "pink".

Meanwhile in Aliquippa Carter is reported to be rapidly nearing into condition. Naturally he is brimful of confidence and believes he will score another win over his recent foe.

Anticipate Crowded Arena

The entire fistic docket to be presented by the Jefferson appears inviting. The main bout between Mike Wukas, Aliquippa and Nick Delmark, one of Youngstown's best welterweights, promises to be a lugging-bee.

"When "Frankie Regal" of State Teachers college at Slippery Rock squares off against Steve Kowalik of McKeesport, fans can expect action. The college boy, now studying to be a teacher, is said to be a smart boxer.

There will be five other bouts on the card. Matchmaker Tom Leach will announce the names of opponents to other New Castle fighters today.

Because of the rivalry between Moran and Carter a big crowd of out-of-town fans plan to attend the bout judging from reports reaching the Jefferson Athletic club.

CLEMSON WINS

Clemson's undefeated collegiate eleven kept in line by bowling over South Carolina 21-13, yesterday in Columbia, S. C. The Tigers took the lead at the start and never relinquished it.

SPORTS WORLD RAMBLINGS

Grid bugle call:—Our football appetite fully whetted, here's how this week's pig-pelt foray looks from this nook:

Duquesne-Manhattan, The Dukes at full strength, good enough to husk Manhattan, 14-6....

Case-Carnegie Tech.:—The Tartans are getting down to their size. Carnegie gets the vote 7-0.

Michigan-Penna:—In Ann Arbor, they'll spot you Penn and 13, Reagan thrown in for good measure. The Quakers are good, in their own class. This doesn't happen to be their division. Harmon, Westfall and company, 18-7....

Hunters Urged To Be Cautious And Courteous

Precautions Urged To Protect Fellow Hunters—Respect Landowner's Rights

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 25—The Pennsylvania Game Commission urges hunters who take to the fields this year, to exercise every precaution to insure the lives of themselves and fellow nimrods.

Special emphasis was placed on the warning that all huntsmen keep the safety lock on their guns until ready to fire."

"You may lose a shot" the commission said, "if you have to fumble around to release it, but what's the loss of a rabbit or a deer compared to your own or someone else's life."

In addition to the timely warning concerning the safety rules of the forests, the game board also made an urgent appeal to Pennsylvania hunters to respect the rights of the landowners while a guest on his property.

Declaring that the burden of responsibility rests squarely with the hunters afield, authorities appealed for cooperation in the care of proverty while hunting. Leaving gates open, bars down, shooting livestock, and theft were acts of vandalism and must not occur this year, officials said.

Further care was asked of hunters when in vicinity of C. C. C. camps or where groups of boys are working.

"With all the open hunting territory available," Ross L. Leffler, president of the commission stated, "There is absolutely no excuse whatever for any hunter to hunt within rifle range of any camp or work project."

The commission concluded with the statement that if hunters would hunt more carefully and shoot less aimlessly, the future of their sport would be assured for many generations.

In his spare time United States Senator James M. Mead, of New York, indulges in physical exercise and still has his own softball team in Buffalo between sessions. He also is responsible for the establishment of a gymnasium in Washington where House and Senate members keep fit when they can find time for it. Mead always does find time.

Music To Feature At Football Game

New Castle High Band And Mixed Chorus Of 120 Voices Will Render Patriotic Songs

The football fans are invited to bring their vocal chords with them tonight to the New Castle-Cleveland John Adams football game at Taggart stadium. The ceremonies start at 7:30 o'clock with the raising of the American flag.

The New Castle high band of 105 pieces and a group of 120 young high school girls and boys will render several patriotic songs, including "God Blass America," "I Am An American", and "America". Directing the singing will be Robert Duff, choral director of senior high Directing the band will be Professor Joseph Replogle.

Microphones will be installed on the field to carry the music over the entire east side. The football crowd the high students and grown-ups will be asked to lend their voices to make the occasion a big success.

Several members of the American Legion will assist with the details tonight. A big shield 50 feet by 50 feet has been made and is composed of red, white and blue. Big preparations have been made for the occasion and it is hoped that nice weather prevails.

It has been suggested that the football fans show a little more respect than they have in the past when the national anthem, "Star Spangled Banner", is being played as the American flag is being raised.

Westminster To Play Thiel On Saturday

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Oct. 25—It will be "may the best team win" this Saturday Oct. 26 when Coach Grover Washabaugh's Westminster eleven meets the Thiel Tomcats at New Wilmington in a Dad's day game for the Titans.

Several shifts have been made in the Titan starting lineup. Ted Ossoff, right end, will probably be replaced by Chalmers Zec', Ohio University transfer. Ossoff's ankle has been troubling him for the past two weeks.

In the backfield, Girwood, Etna back, may replace Tony Valicenti at left-half. Girwood, a two-letter half in Etna high, an all-district player is considered by Coach Washabaugh as one of his fastest backfield prospects.

Other probable Titan starters include Washabaugh, LE, Harris or Fredericks, LT; Lane, LG; Wilson, C; Hudson or Horton RG; Reed or Davis, RT; Zech, or Ossoff, RE; Evanoff, Q; Girwood or Valicenti, LH; F. DeMoise, RH; and J. Demoise, or Riggle, F.

Thiel and Westminster will be on a par this Saturday, in both offensive and defensive power. The Thiel gridders have victories over Clarion 12-0, Alliance 25-0, and defeats by Hiram 2-0 and the strong Juniata Indians 18-0.

For the first time this season the Titans will be meeting a team of equal strength. Westminster was outclassed by the West, Virginia, Youngstown, and Slippery Rock aggregations; and topped in weight and offensive power by Bethany. Both Thiel and Westminster will have five or six freshmen in their starting lineups.

The Dad's Day game is called for 2 o'clock.

NEW CASTLE AND CLEVELAND PLAY HERE TONIGHT

New Castle High Seeks Seventh Win Of Year; First Time Any Cleveland Team Has Played In New Castle; Parou Out Of Starting Lineup; Visitors Will Have Big Advantage In Weight; Kickoff Slated For 8 O'Clock.

JOHN ADAMS High of Cleveland with a football team of young giants will make its first appearance here this evening at Taggart stadium, meeting the "Red Hurricanes" of New Castle High. The kickoff is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The game tonight marks the first time in the history of New Castle football that a Cleveland team has appeared on the card. Last year John Adams won the Cleveland city championship. They lost some men by graduation, but had enough good reserves from last year to build a strong team this year. Adams has won four and lost two so far this year.

Big Weight Advantage

The invaders from Ohio will have a big advantage in weight over the "Canes" with a line that averages 186 and a 161 backfield. The New Castle line averages 170 and 152 in the backfield. Roger Lazarro, the Adams High left tackle, tips the scales at 235, and Kinkopf, the right tackle, goes 190 or better.

New Castle's tackles, Joe Audino and Scarazzo, weigh 183 and 178 respectively. Barry, the center, will have close to 20 pounds on New Castle's own center, Warren "Russ" Morgan. The lightest man on the Cleveland squad is Bobby Lazzaro, brother of the big tackle, who goes just 150 pounds, and is co-captain along with Fullback Steve Jadlowsky.

Aerial Battle Likely

Indications in practice this week lead one to believe that New Castle is readying an aerial circus for the benefit of the John Adams High eleven. Robert E. "General" Lee has spent many hours this week in brushing up on his passes.

This year especially New Castle has a fine record in the forward passing end of the game. Pass defense has been stressed considerably the past week.

Head Coach Phil Bridenbaugh announced that Parou would not start at right end tonight, but that he would select either Tomalello or Pugh for the terminal job. Parou was injured in the Washington game. Ciazza has a bruised shoulder but will be in there at the start of the game, it was indicated.

Referee John Chapman inadvertently got between the runner and a tackler during a semi-pro football game. The tackler missed the ball-carrier, but not Chapman, whose leg was broken in three places by the impact.

Frank Regan of Penn, after practice, continues to carry a football around in his hands, putting it down only long enough to take a shower and dress. "Just a little homework to prevent fumbling," he explains.

Millions of young people throughout the United States play basketball today, but Dr. James Naismith, the man who invented it, never played a game of it in his life.

Moran's Hands In Good Shape

KOWALIK TO BOX SLIPPERY ROCK BOY

Apparently in the pink of condition for his bout Monday night with Grover Carter of Aliquippa in The Arena, Frankie Moran will cut out boxing after Saturday, he stated today.

Moran's hands are in good condition and he believes that the assault he will wage several nights hence will be so aggressive that Carter who scored a TKO over him at Ellwood City, will be unable to keep pace with him.

"After I was defeated at Ellwood City", said Moran today "Many fans believed I had passed my peak and that in future bouts I would fall prey to opponents. I'm going to fool these boys" he asserted.

He goes on the road for a several miles run every morning and at night not only boxes with training partners, but wrestles, skips rope, punches big and small bags and tugs at the weights to reach the "pink".

Meanwhile in Aliquippa, Carter is reported to be rapidly nearing into condition. Naturally he is brimful of confidence and believes he will score another win over his recent foe.

Anticipate Crowded Arena

The entire fistic docket to be presented by the Jefferson appears inviting. The main bout between Mike Wukas, Aliquippa and Nick Delmark, one of Youngstown's best welterweights, promises to be a lugging-bee.

"When "Frankie Regal" of State Teachers college at Slippery Rock squares off against Steve Kowalik of McKeesport, fans can expect action. The college boy, now studying to be a teacher, is said to be a smart boxer.

There will be five other bouts on the card. Matchmaker Tom Leach will announce the names of opponents to other New Castle fighters today.

Because of the rivalry between Moran and Carter a big crowd of out-of-town fans plan to attend the bout judging from reports reaching the Jefferson Athletic club.

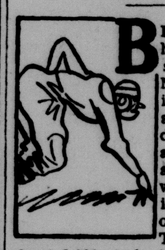
East Siders Tally In Final Period To Deadlock Annual Game 13-13

Share 1940 Junior High Title, Doster, Humphreys, Gender Do Scoring



BEN FRANKLIN high football team staged a "Frank Merriwell" finish in the final period at Taggart Stadium yesterday afternoon to gain a 13-13 deadlock with the Washington high favored to win team. The game drew about 3,000 students and grown-ups.

Franklin high took the lead in the first period when Jacobs blocked a Wash High kick on the 18-yard line, and Sisco recovered for Franklin. Gender scored on an end run sweep and Humphreys was stopped in an attempt for an extra-point.

Doster Scores On Pass

Early in the second period Washington high gained the lead when Altman tossed a pass from the 50-yard line to Bob Doster on the 30 and he ran the ball over for a touchdown. Altman plunged the extra-point to put the Alexandermen ahead 7 to 6.

Washington high late in the second period took possession of the ball on the Franklin 20 on a fumble. Doster on the first play, reversed his field and tallied. Altman tried an end run for the extra point but failed. Washington led at the end of the first half 13 to 6.

In the third period neither team could score, but towards the end of the period Gender, the Franklin high booter, put the North Hillians in the hole with a great punt that was grounded by Newman on the 2-yard line. Doster got away a nice kick from back of the goal line, and Franklin high lost the ball on downs a few minutes later.

Humphreys Hero

In the fourth period as the game was nearing its end, and it looked like a Washington high triumph, Sisco blocked a Washington high punt on the 20-yard line, and it was recovered by SanFilippo. On four plays Humphreys carried the ball over on a line plunge. Humphreys then tied the game with a line plunge for the extra point, as several hundred Franklin high students just about tore the stadium loose from its foundation.

The entire Franklin high line put up a "swellegant" exhibition of defensive and offensive football, and in the backfield Humphreys was the real standout. The Franklin linemen had a busy afternoon blocking punts and recovering fumbles. Best in the Washington lineup was Preston, Doster, Altman, Brothers and Buckingham.

The first downs were Franklin 5, Washington 3.

Conn-Savold To Battle 12 Rounds

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The battle between Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn, who has been taking on all heavyweights in the hopes of eventually getting a crack at Champion Joe Louis, and Lee Savold of Des Moines, Ia., was definitely on today for 12 rounds after Promoter Mike Jacobs settled a controversy between the opposing managers.

Jacobs announced that the fight will be a 12-round affair. Originally Johnny Ray, Conn's manager, insisted on 15 rounds and Pinkey George, Savold's manager, wanted the bout to go ten.

It also was revealed that negotiations were underway for a match between Buddy Baer and Red Burman in New York on Dec. 5, with the winner to meet the winner of the Conn-Savold rumpus.

Two University of South Carolina backs, Ken Roskie and Angelo DeMario, the bohunk twins of 1939, have turned their prowess to varsity competition and are fast erasing wrinkles from Coach Rex Enright's brow.

Dick Banger and Whitey Piro, Syracuse senior back and end, room together and operate a mutually owned car. They are inseparable.

Donald F. Lippincott, a Penn football candidate, is the son of a world's 200-meter sprint champion and 1912 Olympic star.

Princeton is generally regarded as the strongest of the Big Three this year with Dave Allerdice, the passer, the standout star.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

It seems that quite a few folks have been giving this football "Who You Would Like to See Ne-Ca-Hi Play" a lot of consideration . . . two requests came in this morning for the same town . . . Certain folks would like to see New Castle and Harrisburg teamed up . . . either with the John Harris or William Penn team . . . there are a lot of people interested in both towns, and the following crowd would make this proposition worth some consideration . . . then it was suggested a return game with Hammond, Ind. . . . it seems that some would like to see something again. Also suggested was Weirton, W. Va. . . . The Red Raiders have a good team usually, and their band is very colorful . . . after all, bands do a great deal in making a game . . . some football coaches don't recognize bands, but the man who pays to get in does, and that's what counts . . . And also we should, according to one letter, see what could be done with the many teams that are playing out of Toledo, Ohio . . . so you see, New Castle football fans are interested.

How would you like to have a Chow puppy? You may have this dog by phoning 6208 . . . street addrdess, 98 Riverview . . . this puppy is just two months old.

The Community Chest campaign is still in progress . . . have you made your contribution? If you haven't, then maybe you would like to do it before another 24 hours passes by . . . it's very easy to say, oh, I'll do it tomorrow . . . and then tomorrow never comes and you haven't played your part in this great United States . . your contribution doesn't have to be great . . . just a few cents a week will do wonders . . . and most all of us can afford that . . . so sit down and do a little paper work and then call your solicitor . . . or call the Community Chest headquarters. Thanks, folks.

The meanest man in town is the one who while driving along a street where boys are playing ball, deliberately runs over and crushes the ball . . . this has been known to happen . . . we agree that the street is not the place for boys to play, but in many sections that is the only place for them . . . if you are interested in taking the boys from the streets, you should contact this office . . . we are in contact with a group of responsible people who are making this problem their job.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

It seems that quite a few folks have been giving this football "Who You Would Like to See Ne-Ca-Hi Play" a lot of consideration . . . two requests came in this morning for the same town . . . Certain folks would like to see New Castle and Harrisburg teamed up . . . either with the John Harris or William Penn team . . . there are a lot of people interested in both towns, and the following crowd would make this proposition worth some consideration . . . then it was suggested a return game with Hammond, Ind. . . . it seems that some would like to see something again. Also suggested was Weirton, W. Va. . . . The Red Raiders have a good team usually, and their band is very colorful . . . after all, bands do a great deal in making a game . . . some football coaches don't recognize bands, but the man who pays to get in does, and that's what counts . . . And also we should, according to one letter, see what could be done with the many teams that are playing out of Toledo, Ohio . . . so you see, New Castle football fans are interested.

How would you like to have a Chow puppy? You may have this dog by phoning 6208 . . . street addrdess, 98 Riverview . . . this puppy is just two months old.

The Community Chest campaign is still in progress . . . have you made your contribution? If you haven't, then maybe you would like to do it before another 24 hours passes by . . . it's very easy to say, oh, I'll do it tomorrow . . . and then tomorrow never comes and you haven't played your part in this great United States . . . your contribution doesn't have to be great . . . just a few cents a week will do wonders . . . and most all of us can afford that . . . so sit down and do a little paper work and then call your solicitor . . . or call the Community Chest headquarters. Thanks, folks.

The meanest man in town is the one who while driving along a street where boys are playing ball, deliberately runs over and crushes the ball . . . this has been known to happen . . . we agree that the street is not the place for boys to play, but in many sections that is the only place for them . . . if you are interested in taking the boys from the streets, you should contact this office . . . we are in contact with a group of responsible people who are making this problem their job.

Stock Market Is Reactionary

Some Stocks Buck Trend For Net Gains During Morning, However

By LESLIE GOULD
(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The stock market continued reactionary today, although a few scattered issues bucked the trend for net gains. While some losses ran to more than a point, most were limited to fractional proportions.

It was a duplication of yesterday's slow retreat, with the general list displaying a soft tone from the opening. Trading was light, first-hour sales totalling 130,000 shares vs. 170,000 shares in the same period Thursday.

Feature of the forenoon dealings was the strength in air transport shares, particularly American Airlines on stockholder approval of a preferred stock issue. The latter ran up more than a point, while Eastern and United each gained almost as much.

Some chemicals also were independently firm, notably Dow and DuPont, each up about a half-point. At the same time Monsanto and Union Carbide each dropped a point.

Procter & Gamble and Douglas Aircraft were others to incur losses of at least a point. General Foods dipped fractionally to a new low for the year.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., American Telephone, Consolidated Edison and American Tobacco "B" all were fractionally under last night's closing levels.

AMERICAN FASHION TREND

Due to American resentment against some recent Paris styles, clothiers are now making consumer opinion surveys before issuing new lines of fashions. One of the first completed revealed that 87.5 per cent of men prefer rubber heels to leather. Since heretofore only 60 per cent of men's new shoes have been equipped with rubber heels, a change in shoe styles is forecast, as rubber heels now cost the manufacturer about 40 per cent less than leather and give longer wear.

Scouts Hold Court Of Honor

Several Receive Unusual Awards For Special Attainments Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—A large number of scouts and scouters attended the Court of Honor which was held in the Presbyterian church last night. Boyd Barrett and Norbert Rossman presided over the honor court.

The meeting was called to order by the acting chairman, Boyd Barrett. On request, the scouts of Troop 9, of the United Presbyterian church, under the direction of Scoutmaster Frank Goff, the colors were presented. The entire assembly then repeated the pledge allegiance to the flag. Troop 13 of the First Christian church, under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster William Nelle, was in charge of the candle service. This part of the service was very capably handled by the scouts as they came one by one before the assembly, lighted one of the twelve candles and then gave a scout law and its meaning.

The next part of the court was the awarding of advancement awards made during the month. There were three second class awards, one first class award and thirty merit badges presented.

Scoutmaster Frank Goff was presented with the life award certificate. This award signifies the attainment of ten merit badges.

Scoutmaster J. Donald Howells was then presented with the gold palm award. This means that after one has become an eagle scout and with ten additional merit badges he is then entitled to such an award.

After becoming an eagle scout and attaining a total of 15 additional merit badges a scout or scouter is entitled to receive the silver palm. This honor went to Scoutmaster George Zikeli. This award has been presented to only a few scouts in the local region and thus Scoutmaster Zikeli must be congratulated on the attainment.

The advancement trophy was presented to Troop No. 13 for the month of September for the largest number of awards made during the month. They had a total of eight awards. Troop No. 6 of the Lutheran Brotherhood will win possession of it at the next court of honor for the largest number of advancement awards for the present month.

Announcement of the parade to be held on November 11 in which all Ellwood City scouts, along with Beaver Valley scouts, will participate was made by the district commissioner, Elden D. Danner. A letter was read which was received from the legion committee on the question. Norbert L. Rossman was appointed scout marshal. All scoutmasters are asked to contact him on questions pertaining to the parade.

The chairman of the activity committee, Joe Connell, Sr., announced the rules for the forthcoming field meet. These rules and regulations concerning the events will be distributed as soon as possible. Scoutmasters are requested to get them from the chairman.

The next board of review will be held November 15 and the court of honor will be held November 29 Troop No. 10 will be in charge of colors and Troop No. 6 will be in charge of the candle service.

The climax of the evening was the showing of camp scenes of Camp Thompson and the football games between Ellwood--Sharpsville and Ellwood-Monaca.

The court of honor was then closed with the singing of one verse of "God Bless America" and the scoutmasters benediction by Scoutmaster Ed. Cable of Rotary Troop No. 8.

Ellwood Will Play Aliquippa Saturday

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—The Ellwood City high will meet the toughest foe of the three remaining games Saturday afternoon, when they play the Aliquippa high at the Lincoln field, with the kickoff set for 3 o'clock.

Comparative records show that the Wolverines will enter the game slight favorites, with the Lippemen having lost to Butler and Midland. They held the powerful Ambridge eleven to a scoreless tie last week. The team claims wins over Sewickley and Freedom.

Due to injuries suffered in Monday's scrimmage, Coach Croft announced two changes from last week's starting lineup. "Hank" Seetch will replace Evans Mattocks at right end and Benny Rubino will displace Dave Morrison at the quarterback position. Mattocks suffered an ankle injury and it is very doubtful that he will see any action Saturday while Morrison injured an elbow. He may see action, however, if needed.

Coach Nat Lippe is bringing a powerful eleven here, which, although they were outplayed, held Ambridge scoreless.

A short signal drill, kicking and a chalk talk were on the Wolverines program for today.

The probable lineup:

City Manager Talks To Rotary

Lowell Monroe Is Heard At Meeting On Thursday Night —Future Programs Announced

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—Lowell Monroe, city manager, last night addressed the Rotary on the subject of "Government" beginning with the statement, "Government is actually today 95 per cent. service and 5 per cent. government."

Manager Monroe further explained that the national government had taken over many things formerly considered to be of local concern. He pointed out several items such as public health and sanitation and the protection of life and property which are still constituted as services of the local government.

Mr. Monroe said that the local government was now on a more scientific basis as it often called in the help of trained specialists to aid in the administration. As a result of this local service, he reminded the group, there have been increased costs, giving each town its own special problems. In conclusion he stated that the problem of government now was, "to spread the available funds to give the best possible service to all the people."

It was announced at the meeting that on Tuesday, November 12, the Rotary would join with the Kiwanis in hearing the famous lecturer Cameron Beck. The next regular meeting will be devoted to attending the bridge celebration next Tuesday.

Guests last night at the meeting were Jim Gardner, Benjamin Zeigler, Frank Moutrop, Ray Dambach, Cham Duff and Willard Zehner all of Zelienople and Charles Cable of Greenville.

Stock Market Is Reactionary

Some Stocks Buck Trend For Net Gains During Morning, However

(International News Service Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The stock market continued reactionary today, although a few scattered issues bucked the trend for net gains. While some losses ran to more than a point, most were limited to fractional proportions.

It was a duplication of yesterday's slow retreat, with the general list displaying a soft tone from the opening. Trading was light, first-hour sales totalling 130,000 shares vs. 170,000 shares in the same period Thursday.

Feature of the forenoon dealings was the strength in air transport shares, particularly American Airlines on stockholder approval of a preferred stock issue. The latter ran up more than a point, while Eastern and United each gained almost as much.

Some chemicals also were independently firm, notably Dow and DuPont, each up about a half-point. At the same time Monsanto and Union Carbide each dropped a point.

Procter & Gamble and Douglas Aircraft were others to incur losses of at least a point. General Foods dipped fractionally to a new low for the year.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Anaconda, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Standard Oil of N. J., American Telephone, Consolidated Edison and American Tobacco "B" all were fractionally under last night's closing levels.

AMERICAN FASHION TREND

Due to American resentment against some recent Paris styles, clothiers are now making consumer opinion surveys before issuing new lines of fashions. One of the first completed revealed that 87.5 per cent of men prefe[illegible]bber heels to leather. Since heretofore only 60 per cent of men's new shoes have been equipped with rubber heels, a change in shoe styles is forecast, as rubber heels now cost the manufacturer about 40 per cent less than leather and give longer wear.

Scouts Hold Court Of Honor

Several Receive Unusual Awards For Special Attainments Last Night

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—A large number of scouts and scouters attended the Court of Honor which was held in the Presbyterian church last night. Boyd Barrett and Norbert Rossman presided over the honor court.

The meeting was called to order by the acting chairman, Boyd Barrett. On request, the scouts of Troop 9, of the United Presbyterian church, under the direction of Scoutmaster Frank Goff, the colors were presented. The entire assembly then repeated the pledge allegiance to the flag. Troop 13 of the First Christian church, under the leadership of Assistant Scoutmaster William Nelle, was in charge of the candle service. This part of the service was very capably handled by the scouts as they came one by one before the assembly, lighted one of the twelve candles and then gave a scout law and its meaning.

The next part of the court was the awarding of advancement awards made during the month. There were three second class awards, one first class award and thirty merit badges presented.

Scoutmaster Frank Goff was presented with the life award certificate. This award signifies the attainment of ten merit badges.

Scoutmaster, J. Donald Howells was then presented with the gold palm award. This means that after one has become an eagle scout and with ten additional merit badges he is then entitled to such an award.

After becoming an eagle scout and attaining a total of 15 additional merit badges a scout or scouter is entitled to receive the silver palm. This honor went to Scoutmaster George Zikell. This award has been presented to only a few scouts in the local region and thus Scoutmaster Zikell must be congratulated on the attainment.

The advancement trophy was presented to Troop No. 13 for the month of September for the largest number of awards made during the month. They had a total of eight awards. Troop No. 6 of the Lutheran Brotherhood will win possession of it at the next court of honor for the largest number of advancement awards for the present month.

Announcement of the parade to be held on November 11 in which all Ellwood City scouts, along with Beaver Valley scouts, will participate, was made by the district commissioner, Elden D. Danner. A letter was read which was received from the legion committee on the question. Norbert L. Rossman was appointed scout marshal. All scoutmasters are asked to contact him on questions pertaining to the parade.

The chairman of the activity committee, Joe Connell, Sr., announced the rules for the forthcoming field meet. These rules and regulations concerning the events will be distributed as soon as possible. Scoutmasters are requested to get them from the chairman.

The next board of review will be held November 18 and the court of honor will be held November 29. Troop No. 10 will be in charge of colors and Troop No. 6 will be in charge of the candle service.

The climax of the evening was the showing of camp scenes of Camp Thompson and the football games between Ellwood--Sharpsville and Ellwood-Monaca.

The court of honor was then closed with the singing of one verse of "God Bless America" and the scoutmasters benediction by Scoutmaster Ed. Cable of Rotary Troop No. 8.

Ellwood Will Play Aliquippa Saturday

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—The Ellwood City high will meet the toughest foe of the three remaining games Saturday afternoon, when they play the Aliquippa high at the Lincoln field, with the kickoff set for 3 o'clock.

Comparative records show that the Wolverines will enter the game slight favorites, with the Lippemen having lost to Butler and Midland. They held the powerful Ambridge eleven to a scoreless tie last week. The team claims wins over Sewickley and Freedom.

Due to injuries suffered in Monday's scrimmage, Coach Croft announced two changes from last week's starting lineup. "Hank" Seetch will replace Evans Mattocks at right end and Benny Rubino will displace Dave Morrison at the quarterback position. Mattocks suffered an ankle injury and it is very doubtful that he will see any action Saturday while Morrison injured an elbow. He may see action, however, if needed.

Coach Nat Lippe is bringing a powerful eleven here, which, although they were outplayed, held Ambridge scoreless.

A short signal drill, kicking and a chalk talk were on the Wolverines program for today.

The probable lineup:

City Manager Talks To Rotary

Lowell Monroe Is Heard At Meeting On Thursday Night —Future Programs Announced

ELLWOOD CITY, Oct. 25.—Lowell Monroe, city manager, last night addressed the Rotary on the subject of "Government" beginning with the statement, "Government is actually today 95 per cent. service and 5 per cent. government."

Manager Monroe further explained that the national government had taken over many things formerly considered to be of local concern. He pointed out several items such as public health and sanitation and the protection of life and property which are still constituted as services of the local government.

Mr. Monroe said that the local government was now on a more scientific basis as it often called in the help of trained specialists to aid in the administration. As a result of this local service, he reminded the group, there have been increased costs, giving each town its own special problems. In conclusion he stated that the problem of government now was, "to spread the available funds to give the best possible service to all the people."

It was announced at the meeting that on Tuesday, November 12, the Rotary would join with the Kiwanis in hearing the famous lecturer Cameron Beck. The next regular meeting will be devoted to attending the bridge celebration next Tuesday.

Guests last night at the meeting were Jim Gardner, Benjamin Zeigler, Frank Moutrop, Ray Dambach, Cham Duff and Willard Zehner all of Zellenople and Charles Cable of Greenville.

Croton Residents Want Fire Truck

Action Of City In Removing Fire Truck Protested At Mass Meeting

At a meeting in the Croton avenue school building last evening, more than a hundred residents of the Third ward met and formed an organization, which will appear before council in the near future and ask that the fire truck, which was removed from the third ward station, last summer, be replaced. Robert Sheehy was elected chairman and Arthur Anderson, secretary.

It was pointed out at the meeting that a fire truck, which is in running condition is at present kept in the city garage, and could be sent to the Third Ward, but that no fire apparatus outside hand extinguishers has been at the Third ward station since last summer.

It is planned to circulate petitions among the residents of the Third ward, which will be presented to council later. In the meantime another meeting has been scheduled for next Thursday evening in the same place.
